Our Government. What Ails It? Women and Men, a Prophecy Chicago Does Not Do This Yes, We Are Docile

By Arthur Brisbane

HODGE, CAL., March 5—Congress has gone home, for the summer. No extra session and high finance feels happier. Congress does little to frighten even a mouse, but it MIGHT do something, and finance is nervous just now, jumpy in fact, looking back over its stock issuing jobs during the boom.

President Hoover, vetoing the Muscle bill, goes on record against any plan to have Uncle Sam engage in business. The President declares that the bill "raises squarely the issue of federal government ownership and operation of power and manufacturing business." He is against that, vetoes the bill, and Congress, glad of an excuse, lets the veto stand.

Other issues are raised in that bill and the veto. Is government ownership and operation objectionable because it is wicked in itself or because the nation's water power resources and profits belong by divine will to private individuals? If the latter, should not the private individuals at least pay to harness the power?

The people have spent $150,000,000 at Muscle Shoals. Will they get their money back, with interest, from those to whom the government ultimately delivers the public property? The answer to that is NO.

There is also the question of government honesty and efficiency. If it had been said that the bill was vetoed because our government is not sufficiently honest or capable to run a power and fertilizer plant, the average citizen would have said "amen," remembering recent government efforts to relieve the farmers and the unemployed.

It is fortunate that our government's lack of honesty and capacity was not admitted before the people's postoffice got started. On the present theory, of course, you would be told that the government must not manage a letter and parcel post business, and you would be paying $1 at least to send a letter from Miami to Seattle. What evidence is there of that? This much. England owns its own telegraph system, and sends telegrams for six pence a distance that would cost 80 cents in this country.

And, while we like to think we do everything better than foreigners can do it, it must be added that the English government-owned telegraph is far more efficient than ours. And our system would not carry a telegram even two blocks for six pence. There are two sides to government ownership. Whenever our people get ready they can try the other side. But that takes thinking and will power.

Dr. C. G. Shaw, who specializes in culture, art and such things, says women soon will write all the best books and paint the best pictures. The statement pleases women, does no harm, is absolutely inaccurate and will remain inaccurate for centuries.

Nature arranges our work. Men work externally, women work internally. Women will continue to produce the capable men and the men will continue to produce the greatest books and pictures. That need not annoy women. Michelangelo, creating his Moses, or decorating the Sistine chapel, is no greater than the mother that produced him. He is her work, as the Moses is his work. It is, at the same time, her mental grandchild.

When the world is fully populated, each woman limited strictly to two children, science, as predicted by Haldane, may find a way to make child bearing much simpler and easier, and the gestation term two-thirds shorter. Then women may become, even in practical external things, equal or superior to men. Women have greater power than men, which enables them to produce several men. Caruso was a 19th child.

With the passing of time, men may degenerate like the male of the parasite crab, interestingly described by Darwin. The female crab, huge and self-sufficient, carries the male, as big as a ten-cent piece, under one of her flippers, and he lives happily in there. Ten million years hence, the fully developed female human may open her vanity case, take out an eager little creature, her husband, and say to her Brobdingnagian sister, "Don't you think he is cunning." Ten million years ago, the male parasite crab was as big as his wife, or bigger, and no parasite at all. We little know what surprises nature has in store for us.

New York newspapers continue to advertise Chicago as the city of crime, although Chicago, as proved by statistics, stands far from the top as a crime center. New York's newspapers also relate the interesting story of a New York woman strangled to death after she threatened to Property damage was reported as heavy all over the district.

FEAR DEATH NEAR; SEARCH IS MADE FOR BLOOD CLUE

Police Hunt for the Clothes of Youth in His Home; Hint Fingerprints Found

By Staff Correspondent.

Haverhill, March 5—Death appeared certain for Mrs. Clara E. Ellis, hammer attack victim, following a sudden relapse today, according to officials of Benson Hospital.

Her brother was hastily summoned to her bedside, a consultation of doctors took place, and a third blood transfusion, on which life will depend, will be performed if her condition permits.

She was too weak for a transfusion this afternoon.

She lost ground with alarming rapidity all through the forenoon and well into the afternoon, and has little strength left.

A search for bloodstained clothing at the home of Russell Noble, 17-year-old "model boy," charged with assault with intent to kill the wealthy woman was revealed today by police investigators.

The search of the accused boy's home even included examination of the ashes to ascertain if any clothing had been burned. Other quarters to which he had access were also searched. Nothing of value to the state's case was found.

The search was made because the authorities could not understand how the lad's clothes could be free of stains, when the bedroom, in which the brutal attack occurred, was such a gruesome sight.

ONE STAIN ON HAMMER

Painstaking microscopic examination of the clothing he said he wore—the clothes he was arrested in—is still being made by Dr. Timothy J. Leary, Boston medical examiner, but the present status of this phase of the investigation is giving friends of young Noble considerable hope.

The same is true as regards the hammer, police admitted. Only a single speck, which may be blood, has been found on it.

Reports, which the police refused to confirm, are that telltale fingerprints which make the state's case "bullet-proof" were found in the bedroom. No public announcement has been made of the result of fingerprint photographs taken by state police experts.

Patrolman Eugene Radcliffe, one of the best-known and popular officers of the local department, has offered his blood for the third transfusion on Mrs. Ellis.

He is middle-aged and married.

$3,000,000 LOSS IN STORM SWEEPING NEW ENGLAND

FLOOD PICTURES ON PAGES 2 AND 3

Surging in with tremendous power, the third record tide in 24 hours struck another staggering blow today at the Massachusetts coast, already suffering from damage estimated as high as $3,000,000.

The finale to the most destructive storm since 1898, today's tide ripped apart crumbling seawalls, again inundated several communities and tore more cottages from weakened foundations.

Held down by a northwest wind, the surf failed to reach yesterday's proportions, but monstrous swells were breaking over seawalls an hour before high tide.

While thousands of sightseers watched from places of vantage, Revere and Winthrop were again hard hit, with seawalls torn down, streets and cellars flooded and houses battered by thundering surf.

With the recession of the tide which rose a foot and a half less than yesterday, and the cessation of the storm, work of repairing the damage began.

ELY ASKED TO HELP

Workmen also started the task of removing the tons of debris flung far inland by the mighty force of the tide.

Gov. Ely was petitioned by Senator Conde Brodbine to send men and materials immediately to Winthrop and Revere, the hardest hit in this section.

He called particular attention to a crushed culvert at Sales Creek, Revere, which prevents flood water from returning to the ocean, and pointed out the danger of an epidemic caused by stagnation.

100 Facing Death on Island

Halifax, N. S., March 5 (INS)—The lives of more than 100 people were in peril and Devil's Island, a small isle five miles east of Halifax, was in danger of being wiped out today because of a terrific southeast storm.

There is a life saving station on Devil's Island, but the sea has nearly engulfed the buildings housing lifeboats and they cannot be reached.

The island stands out in the Atlantic and is exposed on all sides to the fury of the storm. If the breakwater is carried away there is little hope of those on the island being rescued, as no boat can live in the mountainous seas.

Smoot Says Taxes Won't Jump in 1932

Washington, March 5 (INS)—While conceding a treasury deficit of $500,000,000 on July 1 Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, today declared there would be no increase in federal taxes next year.

Smoot said he expected business would recover in the next 12 months, thus increasing federal revenues to such an extent as to avoid a tax increase when the next Congress assembles.

SHIP IN DANGER, CALLS HELP

Halifax, N. S., March 5—The Furness-Withy steamer Rosalind, from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Halifax, has lost a propeller and is at the mercy of the storm now lashing the North Atlantic, the Marine Agency here announced today.

She sent out an S O S for help. The vessel was reported about 100 miles northeast of Sable Island.

Agents of the line were informed the government had no ship to send to the rescue, as the Stanley and Lady Laurier are both stormbound.

New York, March 5 (AP)—Two ships have been sent out from Halifax, N. S., to aid the steamer Rosalind, agents of the Furness-Withy line said. The steamer has not more than 30 passengers aboard.

Ban Johnson Losing in Fight for Life

Boy's Own Notes on Attack Bared by the American

By a Staff Correspondent.

Haverhill, March 5—Did Russell E. Noble beat Mrs. Clara E. C. Ellis with a hammer in order to provide himself with a fresh plot for a detective story?

Criminologists attracted to the case since the city's model boy allegedly confessed weighed that possibility while studying notations he made from newspaper stories of the crime before his arrest, which were obtained exclusively today by the Boston Evening American.

NOTES IMPORTANT

These notations, made in pencil on a slip of white, ruled composition paper at the public library 36 hours after the widow was found with her skull crushed, gathered more and more importance and it was considered likely they would be stressed by both the state and the defense at Noble's trial.

It is not beyond conjecture that these notations will form the foundation of the youth's defense, if, as has been intimated, his alleged confession is repudiated.

The young high school student declared in his cell today that he made the notes from newspaper stories of the attack in order to outline a fiction story for a detective magazine.

His defense may argue it is obvious that if he was guilty of the murderous attack he did not need to refer to newspapers to and has thrice before given his blood, twice at Benson Hospital and once at Amesbury Hospital.

The patient had apparently passed through her crisis excellently when she was seen to be losing ground early today. She had difficulty swallowing and appeared very uncomfortable.

Police and physicians had hoped that today she would regain consciousness and be able to tell her story of the attack briefly.

BOY ASKS FOR BIBLE

With the exception of occasional flashes of semi-consciousness, she had been in a coma for 175 hours when her brother, George Kimball Clement, was called on the telephone. As he hurried to the hospital, he said:

"My sister's condition is not so good. She's worse today."

The change caused Dr. E. Philip Lankey to announce that the crisis was not yet past and the next 24 hours would be her severest test.

A consultation at the bedside followed, and the transfusion decided upon but the time for it was not definitely set.

"What do you hear from Haverhill?" was the accused boy's question today to Keeper George Bunting of the Lawrence jail, where he is held in $5,000 bail pending a lower court hearing here next Wednesday.

One of his visitors disclosed that the boy is praying for his alleged victim and that he had asked for a Bible.

He reiterated to his visitors that he did not wish Charlotta Green, his "best girl," to call on him, saying:

"Tell her to just forget about me."

SLEEPS BUT LITTLE

He now fully realizes his predicament and the extreme seriousness of his plight if Mrs. Ellis dies, but he is spending most of his time reading, and was supplied today with a book on horticulture, in which he is much interested.

He had planned to enter Massachusetts Agricultural College to pursue a course of study in that field next September.

His sleep is not very good, his brother said today. He exercises daily in the jail yard, but because of his youthfulness is assigned a special guard, and this keeps him entirely away from the other prisoners, which was in accordance with his wishes.

Being a prisoner awaiting trial, he is not called upon to do any work except to sweep out his cell each morning.

There is considerable speculation among his relatives and friends about the hearing scheduled for district court next Wednesday.

The state is expected to ask another continuance, but may be forced to show its hand, as the defense may demand a full hearing, and Judge John J. Winn usually holds a full public hearing even in the case of inquests.

State Detective Griffin was busy today interviewing witnesses and tying up various ends of the investigation.

He has not given up hope of finding blood-stained clothing, and he is seeking to learn if young Noble tried to break into other houses in addition to that of Mrs. Ellis and another on the same street, breaks which he admitted in his confession.

CHECK-UP ON DANCE.

The authorities are also investigating a statement that he attended a dance at Lawrence last Wednesday evening, with a boy chum and two high school girls, returning only a short time before the attack on Mrs. Ellis.

The girls returned to Haverhill on an early train and Noble and his companion returned on the last bus. The identity of Noble's three companions has not been disclosed. The police are searching for them today to interview them.

The other boy is said to have gone home. At his home in Bradford, according to the alleged confession, Noble procured the hammer and flashlight and pliers, having borrowed the pliers from the florist who employed him.

Information that Noble attended the dances on the night of the attack was furnished by Earle Turner of 36 Lindel st. Earle, a senior at Haverhill high school, was one of young Noble's closest chums. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Turner and, like Russell, a bright student.

CRUM NOTICED CHANGE

Turner described a change in Noble in line with that noted by Principal Arlington L. Clow of Haverhill high school, who said that since New Year's the boy had been falling off in his studies.

"Friday noon, the day after Mrs. Ellis was found unconscious in her home," said Turner, "I met Russell Noble on Merrimack st. He was looking at pictures in a photographer's case when I stepped up and tapped him on the shoulder.

"He seemed as cheery as usual. After we had been chatting a minute or two the conversation drifted to the Ellis assault. As I recall it, I mentioned it first.

"He said he didn't see why anybody would do such a thing. 'It seemed sorry about it. He didn't say he knew Mrs. Ellis. We didn't dwell on the case very long. While we were talking, two girls came along. I don't know their names. They were about 17.

"They both asked Russell at once when he and his boy friend had arrived in Haverhill the night before. They had been to a dance together and they came home early by train and the boys returned to Haverhill later.

"I don't know whether Russell stayed out late at night recently. I often went to dances with him in town on Saturdays or other occasions.

"I did notice, however, that since the mid-year exams he didn't act as well as usual. He complained to me many times that he felt all tired out. He said he felt as if all he wanted to do was to tumble into bed and stay there.

"Ever since this affair happened I have been convinced that Russell was suffering from a breakdown from overstudy and working too hard in off hours. He was ambitious and tried to accomplish too much.

"The only girl I ever saw him with in any way steady was Charlotte Green. She is a fine girl. They used to walk home together and I often accompanied them part of the way.

"I think Russell is innocent. I think he confessed to shield someone else. He's that type. I recall I had a little difficulty with one of the teachers. It didn't amount to much but when Russell saw I was in a jam he went forward and took the blame. I tried to stop him and went to the teacher and said Russell had nothing to do with it and assumed full responsibility.

CONVINCED OF HONESTY

"I cite that to illustrate his loyalt, and fine spirit and high character. There wasn't a finer boy in high school than Russell Noble and his chums were among the best in school.

"I never noticed anything out of the way about Russell. As to any shortage in school funds I know he would have made good. He simply didn't keep track for a spell, but he was always the soul of honesty.

"He was serious at times for his age and looked ahead and planned for the future more than most of us. He was clean-minded and full of fun. He didn't take part in school athletics. His interests lay along other lines, but he was always careful to keep himself physically fit until lately, when he didn't seem so keen and alert."

City and State police replied to criticisms from the defense camp as to the alleged confession as the methods employed in securing it. It was contended today that there were no threats or brow beating or "sweating" in the examination of Noble at police headquarters Sunday morning.

On the contrary, the interrogators are reported to have been unusually gentle. Noble's brother, Charles, who advised him to surrender the tell-tale wrist watch taken from Mrs. Ellis' bedroom, was subjected to a more severe and longer quiz than Russell.

BYSTANDERS SCURRY TO SAFETY AS GIANT COMBER SMASHES ITS WAY ACROSS BATTERED SEA WALL

Today's record high tide, the third in 24 hours, and the highest this section has seen in 30 years or more, saw no let-up in the destruction along the low lying shores. This mountainous wave showed the height reached today by the towering seas, estimated at 40 feet above the street level, while clouds of spray whirled aloft many feet higher and spread out for hundreds of yards in every direction. For several hours before and after the hour of high water the pounding of the giant combers went on, viewed by crowds that raced back and forth (Staff photo.)

HAMMER BOY IS STILL MODEL

How does the "model boy" of Haverhill behave in a jail cell?

Is the former Sunday school teacher, held for the hammer attack on Mrs. Clara E. G. Ellis, downcast or cheered by public sympathy?

"He behaves just like any boy who has never been locked in a cell before," said Warden George Bunting at the Essex county jail at Lawrence, where the blond youth is confined in the east wing.

SHRINKS FROM CONTACTS

"I have had any number of people asking me those same questions since Russell Noble was brought over here Monday," Warden Bunting said. "In the first place, any boy being placed behind bars for the first time shrinks from contact with others; it is a shock.

"Young Noble spends most of his time reading magazines and newspapers. He does not seem to be morbidly interested in details of his own case, as many imagine. He gets all the papers, and we can't censor what is in them, for all prisoners read them. They swap magazines, most of them preferring detective stories and murder mysteries just as a large proportion of the reading public does."

Because Noble is so young, Warden Bunting declared that he would shield him as far as possible from the harsher side of prison life.

WARDEN HELPS YOUTH

"Ordinarily, I would not allow a prisoner held on a charge of this kind see visitors, but in the case of this young boy I am constrained to do all that I can to help him. If he were a hardened criminal I would have no prejudice against allowing him to be interviewed and photographed behind bars, but this boy is hardly more than a child. He is rather timid in his strange surroundings."

Noble will be allowed to see his relatives twice a week, and will be permitted to have dainties sent by friends.

Young Noble exercises two hours a day, the same as all other prisoners.

Three in Hospital After Icy Plunge

Lawrence, March 5—Alcide La Roche, 45; Joseph Baggert, 32, and Wilfred Coty, 30, are n the General Hospital here suffering from immersion, after an unexpected swim in the icy waters of the Merrimac river today.

At noon, La Roche was walking across the river on top of the ice, on his way to work in one of the mills. He broke through the ice. Baggert and Coty, fire ambulance attendants, were unsuccessful in their attempt to save him. By use of an extension ladder other members of the Lawrene fire department rescued the trio.

'HUMAN TORCH' EXTINGUISHED

Newburyport, March 5—Racing through Liberty st. as a human torch today, Horace E. Broyer, 18, was rescued from death today by his father and brother.

Broyer, an employe of his father, Albert Broyer, attempted to light a cigarette in the garage owned by the elder Broyer, when gasoline fumes ignited the clothing.

Screaming with pain, the youth fled to the street in a panic with his father and a brother, Louis, chasing him.

The two caught up to him and wrapped him in coats and blankets, smothering the flames.

Broyer dropped unconscious to the street but was taken by police to Anna Jacques hospital. His right arm was badly burned and he suffered severe scorches on the head and face.

Man Is Robbed Near Police Headquarters

F. E. Vasil, 43, of 63 Compton st., was robbed late last night of $20 in his fruit store at 113 Berkeley st., 25 yards from police headquarters, by two men who walked into the store and asked for cigars. While he was getting these, the two men produced pistols and forced him into a back room, where they tied his hands with twine.

TRADE AIDED AS CONGRESS QUIT

Washington, March 5 (AP)—A more optimistic attitude as to business conditions was apparent here today with the adjournment of Congress.

Some business and financial leaders, as well as government officials, felt the assurance of no further session of Congress until next December had removed one more deterrent to trade.

It was agreed Congress had strengthened the country's employment and economic position by appropriations carrying forward extensive public improvements.

But that commerce did not want an extra session was shown some months ago when the United States Chamber canvassed business organizations of the country for expressions of judgment respecting the probable effects.

Of the hundreds of replies, not more than a score suggested an extra session would be beneficial, and an even smaller number expressed opinion an extra session would make no difference one way or the other.

Liner Hit by Giant Sea Lands Injured in Boston

Two of the countless epic battles with the storm at sea ended in Massachusetts waters today.

S. S. Lady Somers docked here 22½ hours late on the run from Bermuda, three of her passengers and 11 of her crew in the hospital bay with injuries suffered when the ship was taruck by a mountainous wave, advance guard of a hurricane met 300 miles south of here Tuesday night.

TUG FOUNDERS

The tug Roger C. Sullivan foundered off the mouth of Buzzards Bay, her crew of 11 battling to safety in an open boat after a struggle of two hours and a half with wind and sea.

Lady Somers with 60 passengers aboard was 400 miles out of Hamilton harbor, Bermuda, for Boston at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday when the barometer fell sharply.

Capt. D. W. C. Manning, who stood a 24-hour watch as the bridge during the storm, said a flat, deathly calm descended on the sea.

Then a mountainous wave broke over the ship, bearing her down nearly on her beam ends.

Passengers and crew of the vessel were thrown to the decks. Judge T. F. Clifford, of Franklin, N. H., referee in bankruptcy for that state, was thrown and suffered a badly wrenched leg.

C. J. Craig, newspaper publisher of Bridgewater, N. S., was thrown from a berth and badly bruised about the head and face.

Other passengers suffered minor bruises. Arnold Guttreaux, ship's cook, was the most seriously injured of the 11 crew members. He sustained a gash in the head which required 13 stitches.

SOCIETY GIRL LANDS

All of the injured were treated by G. F. Shaw, ship's doctor.

The hurricane lasted nearly all Tuesday night while the Lady Somers hove to; it diminished the next morning and the steamer, which suffered only slight damage, proceeded.

Among those debarking here were Miss Rebecca Benson, North Shore society girl; Dr. E. L. Pierson and Miss Octavia Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Adams, Frederick Jarauld, Jr. and Dr. John A. Nutter.

The sinking of the tug Roger C. Sullivan, owned by the Great Lakes Dredging & Dock Company of New York, was reported by the Coast Guard station at Woods Hole this morning.

At the end of a long and losing battle with the storm, the seagoing tug foundered at 4:30 a. m. near Old Cock Ledge at the entrance to Buzzards Bay.

ENVOY BLOCKS REUNION IN ARGENTINE

Buenos Aires, March 5, (INS)—Proving that not even a future king can choose his own friends and pleasures, hopes held by the Prince of Wales of spending another convivial evening with the "roughnecks" of the American Club of Buenos Aires went crashing today.

A few hours before the Prince and his younger brother, Prince George, were scheduled to arrive in the Argentine capital in an effort to drum up British trade, Sir J. W. R. MacLeay, British ambassador to the Argentine, turned thumbs down on a formal invitation issued by the club to King George's eldest son.

The last time the Prince of Wales was in Buenos Aires the American Club entertained him. He left London determined to renew his acquaintance with the jovial members, whom he characterized as "those American roughnecks."

Disappointment was more than keen when Ambassador Macleay firmly refused the invitation on behalf of the Prince. Club members had the consolation of feeling the Prince himself would be just as disappointed as they.

WALKER ACTS IN GORDON DEATH

New York, March 5 (AP)—With the passing of a week since the body of Vivian Gordon, prospective witness in a vice graft inquiry, was found in a park thicket, authorities were as baffled by the slaying as when they started.

Of more than 300 persons in high and low places named in Miss Gordon's seven diaries, a score or more have been examined by the grand jury without producing a clue to the identity of her slayer.

Mrs. Leonora Halsey, a Cuban maid, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., told authorities that two men representing themselves as policemen appeared at her home yesterday and threw acid in her face, burning her.

Mayor James J. Walker entered the case indirectly today with a call for a drive on vice and graft to uphold the city's reputation as the "cleanest, most moral city in the world".

EARTH RIPPLES IN STORM

Microseisms, or microscopic earthquakes, were recorded at Harvard throughout the whole of the destructive storm of the last two days.

Announcement of the recordings was made today by L. Don Leet, seismologist in charge, who described the phenomenon as a continual, rhythmic rippling of the earth's solid crust.

The greatest motion recorded was one-thousandth of an inch, but this was five times as great as that recorded in a big storm last December.

The seismograph needle, it was stated, bobbed up and down like a cork on water, requiring about seven seconds for each rise and fall.

The cause is a mystery but they have never been observed except during periods of extremely low barometric pressure; that is, during the most severe storms.

A theory that the earth shakings are caused by the beating of waves on the shore has been thoroughly discredited, the Harvard expert said.

DIVORCED JAZZ KING 'NEVER HAD HOME'

Chicago, March 5 (AP)—Marriage, says Paul Whiteman, is a middle-class institution.

"At any rate, it seems to work best for those of the average mode—somewhere between the hodcarrier and the banker."

So asserted the world-known orchestra leader, whose third union has just been dissolved by divorce.

Pioneer of concert jazz, who added a symphonic touch to the post-war dance lyrics, Whiteman found himself unable to incorporate into his private life the music which responds to his baton.

"VANDA WAS RIGHT."

"Wan was right," he said, referring to Wanda Hoff, the dancer he married in 1922. "I'm married to a dance band."

A sigh traversed his 250-odd pounds.

"She always was right—a wonderful girl. She always said I took more interest in other people's affairs than I did in hers. For instance, the boys in my band. My work is my life and I can't allow anything to interfere with it.

"It's hard for two people in the show business to be happily married. Anyway, I found it impossible. It isn't a normal existence.

"Think of the movie actors in Hollywood. You think they have a snap until you face those big lights and microphones and cameras. I believe they get more happiness out of one or two years of marriage than an average person does in a lifetime. They are forced to travel at high speed, under great pressure, just as they work."

The rotund conductor, whose tiny mustache and round face have been caricatured everywhere, preserved a serious look in his brown eyes.

"NEVER HAD A HOME"

"No, two 'show people' cannot always be good audiences for each other. Yet when one leaves the profession something else is lacking. Van said she would keep up her dancing, but she dropped it a week after we were married. Paul Junior was born. I was on the road for five years consecutively. We had no home.

"I can't remember ever having had a home. I haven't lived more than two months in any one place for years. 'How to be happy though successful—' that's my problem. I've been a flop in my private life, and I'm not blaming any one, but still I can't blame myself entirely either."

U. S. Fleet Engages in Moonlight Battle

U. S. S. Arkansas, March 5 (AP)—Steaming through the tropical Pacific off the southern coast of Panama, the United States fleet continued its manoeuvres today after a mock battle in the night.

Late at night they came back at full speed to attack. The outer guards picked them up under a brilliant tropic moon and opened fire with searchlights.

Capone Gunman Is Held for Perjury

Chicago, March 5 (INS)—Louis "Two Gun" Alterie, veteran of Chicago's earlier gang wars, was under arrest today on a federal warrant charging him with perjury as a result of his reported refusal to testify regarding Alphonse Capone's income tax affairs.

FEEL WRATH OF NEPTUNE

A mountainous wave that tossed the Bermuda liner, Lady Somers, which arrived here late today, about like a toy craft during the storm at sea, injured three passengers and 11 members of the crew. Miss Rebecca Benson, North Shore society girl, a passenger on the liner, is shown at the top. Dr. G. F. Shaw, ship's surgeon, is shown in the next lower picture with Arnold Guttreaux, who received a gash in the head. Mrs. and Judge T. F. Clifford of Franklin, N. H., who were also injured, are shown in the next lower picture. C. J. Craig, Canadian publisher, who was badly bruised when the ship was tossed, is shown at the bottom with Captain D. W. Manning, who remained on the bridge for 24 hours during the storm.

WET-DRY ISSUE PASSED UP BY DEMOCRATS

Washington, March 5 (INS)—John J. Raskob, the anti-prohibition chairman of the Democratic National Committee, relieved the fears of the Southern Drys today that he had any deep or dark designs to force it to go on record on the wet-and-dry issue.

At the same time, however, he made it clear that he is going to propose a set of resolutions for the members of the National Committee to ponder over. Presumably, one of these proposals will be that the party take a militant stand against prohibition.

"But I hope," said Chairman Raskob, with a slight smile, "that there will be no attempt to force action at this meeting."

CHEERED BY DRYS

There was loud applause from the Southern Drys, who were represented in force at the meeting by Congressmen and senators sitting on the sidelines. Alfred E. Smith, titular head of the party was absent.

Before turning the meeting over to Shouse, Raskob read a telegram from John W. Davis, the 1924 presidential candidate, expressing approval of today's meeting.

"Nothing should be more helpful," said Davis' message, "than frequent meetings such as this one—scare headlines to the contrary notwithstanding. I am sure the meeting will pave the way to the convention and clear the path for a victorious Democracy."

Shouse made it emphatically clear that the national organization is strictly neutral as to candidacies. This also brought applause, for there have been suspicions on the part of friends of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt that the national organization was unfriendly to his candidacy.

Shouse rendered an accounting of his stewardship at the party helm in Washington. Credit for the establishment of a militant organization here he gave to Raskob.

He expressed the opinion that the country "has been very well informed from the Democratic standpoint" since the headquarters were established, and for this he gave a large share of credit to the "loyal co-operation" of the Democrats in Congress.

DISSENTER AIRS VIEWS.

Chairman Raskob's remarks were regarded as very conciliatory, but none the less they did not serve to entirely stifle the suspicion of some of the more radical of the Southern Drys, among whom is Senator Cameron Morrison of North Carolina.

When a recess for lunch was declared shortly before noon, the North Carolinian was still a bit suspicious as to what was impending.

"I didn't see anything in his remarks," said Morrison, "that constituted a pledge that he would not bring up things that we don't want brought up. I think it's a piece of unparalleled effrontery and conceit," he continued, "for Raskob and Shouse to come here and tell the Democrats what to do—and to go home then and think it over for 12 months."

This was with reference to the proposals which Raskob had said he would lay before the committee.

4 ARRAIGNED IN $8,000,000 'STOCK FRAUD'

Four men, indicted in the alleged $8,000,000 stock fraud of the New England Investors Shares, Inc., surrendered in Suffolk court today for arraignment on secret indictments.

Counsel for three of nine others told judge Harold Williams their clients would surrender within a few days.

Francis E. Shaw of Brockton and James E. Simpson of Methuen, bankers; Ralph K. Hyde, a Boston auditor, and freeman I. Davidson, one of the founders of the company, were the four arraigned today. They waived reading of the indictments and were released on their own recognizances.

Thomas A. Lavalle, former assistant district attorney, said he would produce Frederick E. Timperly; Atty. William Shaw McCallum reported Austin M. Tinkham would surrender, and Martin Witte, counsel for Adolph Benesch, founder of the company, asked time to get his client from New York.

Charges were filed against 15 men in 35 indictments originally, but yesterday indictments against James M. Swift, former attorney-general, and Edmund P. Talbot, Boston attorney, were not pressed.

Warrants were given Police Inspector John Mitchell of Atty.-Gen. Warner's office for the arrest of the six not reported in court today.

FIRE DRIVES OUT 20 FAMILIES

Twenty families were driven to the street in a heavy snowstorm and three persons were assisted to safety as fire swept a four-story apartment building at 951 Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, early today.

Police and fire officials will investigate the blaze, which they declare to be of incendiary origin.

Police assisted Miss Lucy Brown and Josephine Noverchio to safety through the halls, filled with clouds of choking smoke. The women were partially overcome.

Other occupants reached the street unaided. They included Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson and two children, Mrs. Florence Powers and two children, Joseph Manson, Mrs. Joseph Stevens and Mrs. Grace Maurer.

Generals Arrested in Anti-Soviet Plot

Berlin, March 5 (AP)—A Telephone Union dispatch today said it had come from Habarowsk of the arrest of Gen. Bluecher, commanding Soviet forces in East Siberia, on charges of conspiring with the Ukrainian Nationalists for a army insurrection to establish anti-Soviet military dictatorship.

It was stated also the secret police had uncovered a conspiracy in Ukraine that led to the arrest of Gen. Konsak, commander of the 7th army officers' school in Kharkov; 30 Ukrainian students, 100 Red Galician officers and Prof. Lisynski.

Coalition Peace Agreed in Peru

Lima, Peru, March 5 (AP)—The provisional government of Dr. Ricardo Leoncio Elias, after a midnight conference with leaders of insurgents at Arequipa and leaders of Lima political, civic and industrial life, today accepted the insurgent demands for leadership in organising the new Peruvian government.

Dr. Elias wired David Samanez Ocampo, Arequipa leader, that the Lima junta was willing for the Arequipa junta to name the president of the new provisional government and to have four portfolios in the new ministry.

while attempts were made to obtain equipment with which to pump out their water-logged homes.

MAYOR HURRIES HOME

Mayor Andrew A. Casassa of Revere halted his vacation at St. Petersburg, Fla., when he learned of the storm-damage in his city, and started home by airplane.

"News of the flood inexpressibly shocks me," he wired his office. "I am leaving by airplane immediately. Manwhile do everything possible to assist the unfortunates."

Relief workers, visiting two supposedly uninhabited dwellings in Revere, were astonished to find families on the upper floors. They had emained, they stated, because of children who were ill with measles and considered transportation by boat dangerous.

At Roughan's Point a row of 30 cottages bore mute witness of the fury of the storm, not one escaping heavy damage, while some were beaten into kindling wood.

AIDED BY RED CROSS.

The majority of their occupants were being cared for in City Hall by the Red Cross, but with the appearance of the sun in the afternoon they began preparations to return to their homes.

Rowboats were obtained and many ventured to the water-soaked houses to survey the damage.

Some of the houses were unfit for habitation, and their occupants made plans to live elsewhere until they could be fixed up. As a result some 14 children were to spend the night in the Governor Bradstreet school, where last night 26 unable to reach their homes, were cared for.

Residents of Beachmont in the vicinity of Dolphin and Georgeaves and Henry st. used boats to do their shopping in when their house were cut off by today's tide.

SEA WALL TORN AWAY

Streets in that section were flooded and water poured into cellars, but the occupants were not forced to leave.

At Winthrop 100 yards of sea wall on Shore Drive was torn away and the foundation of the building of the Veterans of Foreign Wars undermined, together with a house next door.

Bus service was discontinue to Point Shirley because of the quantities of sand, stones and debris strewn over the streets, and ploughs were being prepared to clear the roads. Shirley st. was flooded and the Shirley st. school closed.

Residents of half a dozen houses in Shore Drive, the foundations of which were weakened by yesterday's pounding, were ordered out by officials and fled with what effects they could collect.

While town employes labored ineffectively with sandbags and rocks in an attempt to block the flood, torrents pushed down side streets, flooding cellars of business establishments in Shirley st.

NARROW GAUGE STOPS.

Similar precautions were taken in Revere, but equally without success, as huge waves rolled up the beach and cast themselves across the drive.

Narrow Gauge service was again discontinued, and the Eastern Massachusetts trolleys were blocked when the Lynn marshes were inundated for a considerable distance.

Gas and electric light employes were sent out to pump out manholes, but water poured in as fast as they could remove it.

The docks on the Lynn waterfront were inundated and water crept up the streets as it did yesterday.

The tide swept over the isthmus connecting Nahant with the mainland, again turning it into an island.

At 9:15 today, three hours before high tide, waves were already breaking over the crumbled seawall at Winthrop, riding in on long, oily rollers.

PLACES BOARDED UP.

Residents of Shore Drive were busy boarding up doors and windows, weighting down their piazzas with large rocks and preparing for a heavier inundation than yesterday.

Point Shirley, Winthrop, was literally buried beneath tons of sand, stones and debris. Hardly a house on the ocean side of Shirley st. and Taft ave. but showed some sign of the buffeting of the surf.

A rowboat was driven through the door of one house and part way into a front room. Through the window of another an old spar was shot with such force that it penetrated a wall.

Doors were beaten in, windows smashed and furniture reduced to kindling.

The streets were piled with sand, rocks and bits of wood to a depth of three feet in places, in which stalled automobiles stood. One light truck, bowled over by a huge wave, was half buried by the debris.

Town employes were at work early clearing the streets, and a number of summer residents of the district motored down to salvage property.

At Short Beach, between Winthrop and Beachmont, Metropolitan district commission workmen were attempting to clear away the mass of debris piled up by the storm.

In Beachmont, where hundreds were driven from their homes at Roughan's Point and seven houses battered the weakened foundation of homes and public buildings.

BOATS IN REVERE STREETS

The ravages of the morning were practically duplicated in many places. Along the South Shore, Hull and Pemberton were again isolated as the surf roared through the streets. The Roughan's Point area in Revere was again inundated and at Revere Beach a shelter on the sands, which had withstood the morning tide, was washed away.

Thousands flocked to Revere last night to watch the spectacular effects of the incoming tide. An emergency police force of 100 men patrolled the area to prevent looting and give help to householders. Boats were also pressed into service to transport persons about the inundated area.

Scenes similar to those of yesterday morning occurred in Boston, along Atlantic ave. Tremendous waves whipped over the piers and across the avenue. Long wharf and T wharf were among the first to be flooded.

Along the North Shore and at resorts further north the seas were reported to be raging in a wild fury that gripped residents in a near panic.

SHORE DRIVE FLOODED

Shore Drive, from Winthrop to Revere, was flooded late last night and was impassable to traffic. Many cottages were reported in danger. At Gloucester the tide was reported to have flowed over the roads at Eastern Point.

The wind became north shifting to northwest as the tide reached its height last night. Many places were saved from added destruction by this. It is believed heavy toll would have been taken had the wind remained northeast as in the morning.

Blizzard Rages in Rocky Mountain Area

Denver, March 5 (AP)—A wild March blizzard raged over the Rocky Mountain region today and was sweeping cold and snow into the Mississippi Valley.

Blinding snow curtailed air travel and made highways hazardous in the mountain states.

With the storm moving eastward, below freezing temperatures and snow were forecast tonight and tomorrow for parts of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Four persons were injured in automobile accidents on storm swept Colorado highways.

ALFRED ORETO DOMINIC MARINO

It's an ill high tide that doesn't bring someone good. Yesterday's record surge of water, while destroying property and rendering hundreds homeless, had one redeeming feature. Thousands of clams, wrenched from their beds in high water, were left strewn on the sands of Revere Beach by the receding waves. Here are Alfred Oreto and Dominic Marino with some of the huge clams they gathered, while in the background can be seen others

FLIER IN RACE WITH DEATH

Haverhill, March 5—Flying into the face of the storm, in a race with death, Ensign Harold MacFarlane, U. S. N., of this city is on his way by plane from Florida to go to his father's bedside.

His son was notified last night when his condition became serious and left at an early hour this morning from the flying field at Pensacola where he is stationed.

Young MacFarlane is a graduate of the Naval Academy at Annapolis with the 1929 class. His father, whose home is at 12 Columbia ter., has been at the hospital for the past two weeks.

WAR MEMOIRS OF MARSHAL FOCH

MILITARY CONDITIONS FOR ARMISTICE ARE DRAWN UP

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott

When the Supreme War Council was created in 1917, the heads of the Allied governments had at their disposal as technical advisers their military representatives installed at Versailles. The creation, four months later, of a Commander-in-Chief for the Allied armies had somewhat diminished the importance of these advisers, but theoretically they remained none the less the normal counselors of their governments. It was in their capacity as such that they were called upon, on October 8, to draw up a project for an armistice with Germany.

However, while it was natural that the Allied governments should seek the advice of their military representatives, it was still more appropriate that, first of all the generals in command of their armies should be consulted.

Their responsibility was as much involved in granting an armistice as it was in conducting the fighting, and this I brought out in a letter to the French Prime Minister dated Oct. 16.

In this letter I emphasized the matter of territory to be held as security for reparations due the Allies and the situation which it was to be anticipated would arise for this territory—in short, I brought up a series of questions of a political nature, demanding immediate study, and concerning which the government ought to make up its mind and announce its decision to the military commander upon whom would devolve the duty of communicating it to the enemy.

What was obviously needed was a careful preliminary examination of the political terms to be put in the armistice, as a guard against being surprised by future events. The armistice involved halting the operations of enormous armies, and it ought to contain within itself the germ of the principal conditions of the definitive treaty of peace in such a way that whatever was decided upon later could involve no serious modification of the situation established at the moment hostilities were arrested.

The conditions of the armistice were, in fact, to be established by the Allied Governments. This meant that the preparation of the terms would naturally be conducted by the most active of the governments.

The question had just been placed before them by President Wilson. Cutting short his correspondence with Berlin, he referred the German Government to the tribunal composed of the Allies.

General's Views
Each Commander Asked to State Armistice Ideas

The Allied Governments had no reason to reject the principle of the Fourteen Points as a basis of peace, except that, if deemed advisable, they might ask that some of them be modified or elucidated. They also had no reasons for objecting to a cessation of hostilities, provided the conditions which they intended to impose were accepted by the enemy.

They asked me therefore to prepare a detailed proposal from the military standpoint. M. Clemenceau, their spokesman, General Pétain and I on October 24 agreed verbally upon the conditions which would assure full security to the Allied armies and the guarantee to be exacted to that end.

The blockade was to be maintained and the duration of the armistice was to be short.

With a view to getting their opinion, on the afternoon of the next day I called together at my headquarters at Senlis the commanders-in-chief of the American, British and French armies; also the chief of staff of the French navy, Vice-Admiral de Bon. I requested them, in turn, to state what they thought should be the armistice conditions.

Marshal Haig, speaking first, declared that, in his opinion, the German army as a whole was not so broken that it could not offer serious resistance; that it was capable of retiring to the German frontier and of defending it against equal or even superior forces. On the other hand, the British army was short to the extent of 50,000 infantry, the French army was exhausted and the American army incompletely organized. Therefore, he thought that the conditions to be imposed upon Germany should be moderate and demand nothing further than:

1—Evacuation of Belgium and the occupied portions of France.

2—Evacuation of Alsace-Lorraine, Metz and Strasbourg being delivered to the allies.

3—Return of rolling-stock taken from France and Belgium and the repatriation of their citizens.

Without going into a discussion of these conditions, it did not seem that the reasons supporting them were well founded. In the course of a few months the German army had lost enormously in territory, prisoners and war material; it was a beaten army and must assuredly be badly shaken and greatly demoralized.

Questioned in his turn, Gen. Pétain declared that it must be made impossible for the Germans to resume hostilities. To ensure this he proposed:

2—Surrender by the Germans of 5000 locomotives and 100,000 railway cars in perfect condition.

When asked for his opinion, Gen. Pershing stated that he considered the military situation most favorable for the Allies, and that it justified imposing upon Germany severe conditions. He therupon proposed:

1—Immediate evacuation of all territory occupied by the enemy.

2—Occupation of Alsace-Lorraine by the Allies.

3—Withdrawal of the German armies to the right banks of the Rhine and occupation by the Allies of bridgeheads on that shore.

4—Transportation by sea of the American army and its supplies unopposed.

5—Immediate repatriation of all the inhabitants of territory occupied by the Germans.

6—Delivery of all submarines and submarine bases to the Allies or to some neutral power.

7—Return of all rolling stock seized in Belgium and France.

Terms Laid Down
Military Conditions of Armistice Finally Agreed Upon

At the close of this meeting a draft was made of the military conditions to be submitted to the Allied governments; they were in substance:

1—The immediate evacuation of lands unlawfully invaded: Belgium, France, Alsace-Lorraine and Luxembourg, and the immediate repatriation of their inhabitants.

2—Surrender by the enemy of 5000 cannon, 30,000 machine guns and 3000 minenwerfer.

3—Evacuation by the German army of all territory on the left bank of the Rhine, occupation by the Allies of bridgeheads on the right bank, drawn with a radius of 18¾ miles, at Mayence, Coblenz, Cologne and Strasbourg, and the creation on the right bank of a neutral zone 25 miles wide, running east of the river.

4—Prohibition of any destruction or damage by the enemy in the area evacuated.

5—Delivery of 5000 locomotives and 150,000 cars in good condition.

I took his paper myself to Paris on the afternoon of October 26, and I handed the next to noth the President of the Republic and the Prime Minister, M. Poincare remarked that these conditions might be judged unacceptable and refused by the Germans. I replied:

"Then we will continue the war, for at the point the Allied armies have now reached their victorious march must not be halted until they have rendered all German resistance impossible and seized guarantees fully assuring peace—a peace we will have obtained at the price of inestimable sacrifices!"

War or Peace
Foch Ready to Continue Battle Unless Germans Yield

The prosecution of our march toward Berlin should not be interrupted until we were masters of the obstacle presented by the Rhine, for it bars the road to Berlin along the space between Cologne and Mayence.

On the other hand, in a letter dated October 29, I warned M. Clemenceau against the tendency of some of our Allies to show too great a severity in the matter of naval terms they might wish inserted in the armistice.

On the morning of October 31, the heads of the Allied governments held their first meeting at the Paris residence of Colonel House. At the opening of the meeting, it was learned that Turkey had just signed the Mudros armistice and that Austria had collapsed.

This news made it all the easier for me, when asked to give my opinion as to the general military situation to point out how distinctly favorable events were for the Allies.

During more than three months the Germans had been steadily beaten in France and Belgium and forced continuously to retreat. They had lost over 250,000 prisoners and 4,000 guns.

We were in a position to keep up the fighting all winter if need be, and along the whole 250-mile front. We could readily go on fighting until the enemy was destroyed if that became necessary.

Colonel House asked if I considered it preferable to continue the war against Germany or conclude an armistice with her. I answered:

"I am not waging war for the sake of waging war. If I obtain through the armistice the conditions that we wish to impose upon Germany I am satisfied. Once this object is attained, nobody has the right to shed one drop more of blood."

During the afternoon of the same day (Oct. 31) a plenary session of the Supreme War Council was held at Versailles. I was again asked to express my opinion, and I repeated my statements of the morning to the effect that the Allied military situation was becoming more and more favorable.

CENSORSHIP OF BOSTON STAGE IS ATTACKED

Existing statutes were urged today at the State House to supplant Boston's stage censorship board.

Before the House committee on cities, speakers for the bill to abolish the board called attention to existing statutes that call for fine or imprisonment for obscenity in plays.

Opponents of the measure were due to attack it late in the day.

Sidney Grant, Boston attorney, cited the laws and at the same time scored the present censor system as a "dictatorship."

"It gives the power to impose any changes in a play that is desired even to the rewriting of the play," he said.

Reuben L. Lurie, of the executive committee of the Civil Liberties Committee of Massachusetts, cited the banning of "Strange Interlude" as a stage play and the ability to obtain the book unmolested in Boston as an incongruous situation growing from the present censor methods.

Samuel Augoff, also an attorney, charged that serious sex plays were carefully censored, while burlesque performances had little attention paid them.

"Censor Casey is sincere, but he is mistaken in his attitude," Augoff said.

"His attitude to protect the morals of children asserts itself, but children don't care for the legitimate stage and few of them view the performances.

"It is the American policy to have these things tried in open court, but under the present system of censorship this cannot be done."

Others who urged the change were Prof. Albert Lovejoy, director of the Cambridge School of the Theater; Walter P. Eaton, dramatic critic, and George Walker.

The measure was introduced by Representative Christian Herter for Catherine S. Huntington of Boston.

KONJOLA MADE LIFE PLEASANT

Lynn Lady Wishes Her Name Added to Konjola's Long List of Friends

Results are what count, and Konjola can be counted on for results. And this is a fact to which tens of thousands have attested, happy to tell the world what this medicine has done for them.

MISS MAE BENNETT

Don't class Konjola as "just another medicine." It contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It needs no such ingredients. Yet Konjola cleanses and stimulates; it rids the system of poisons and impurities. Konjola may be given to the infant; to the aged; to the whole family. See what Miss Mae Bennett, 184 Washington st., Lynn, has to say about her experience with Konjola, and then decide to call on the Konjola Man at the Epstein drug store, Epstein's, Scollay Square, Boston. He will explain why Konjola has won and kept a million friends.

Now read, and profit by, the words of Miss Bennett, who says:

"I can hardly express in words the praise I would like to give Konjola and I gladly add my name to its long list of endorsers. Even when a little girl I was troubled with constipation, and nothing ever gave more than temporary relief. I had bilious spells and terrible headaches, and became nervous and run down. Then I began having awful pains of neuritis in my right arm.

"I read about Konjola and decided to give it a trial. Well, six bottles made me feel like a different person. Headaches and bilious spells are gone, my nerves have settled, and I am gaining strength. My bowels have been regulated, my complexion has cleared so that my friends remark about how well I look. Konjola surely did wonders for me."

Ask for Konjola and get it . . . don't be switched to a substitute.

4 YOUNG U. S. MILLIONAIRES ENTER CLASSIC

London, March 5 (INS)—Four young millionaires, with fortunes totalling something like $200,000,000, have set their hearts on winning this year's race for the grand national steeplechase prize, England's premier "over the sticks" classic.

The race will be run March 28, over the Aintree course near Liverpool.

The four Americans are J. H. (Jock) Whitney, Long Island millionaire, Stephen (Laddie) Sanford, noted polo player of New York and California, Victor Emanuel, of Long Island and Paris, and R. K. Mellon, a relative of Andrew Mellon, United States Secretary of the Treasury.

Among them they have entered nine horses.

Whitney, who inherited a fortune of $100,000,000 from his father, is pinning his faith on Eastern Hero. Whitney also has entered Sir Lindsay, the gallant jumper which ran third in the Grand aNtional last year.

Sanford, who won the race in 1928, is hoping to repeat this year with Sandy Hook or Mt. Etna.

Victor Emanuel has entered three horses, Bangle the Second, Rhyticere and Royal Arch.

Big Crowd Rushes to Help Boy Caught in Elevator

Worcester, March 5—What seemed to be half the city turned out today because Albert Charron, 14-year-old messenger boy, decided on an elevator ride in the Chamber of Commerce building and got caught in the door at the fourth floor.

Fire apparatus, police patrols and ambulances, a police surgeon, two civilian doctors, city elevator inspectors, private elevator inspectors and the usual crowd answered the first alarm.

It took an hour with pinch bars and other devices to free the venturesome youth. No hurts were found

Rum Car Forfeit to State, Court Rules

Hartford, Ct., March 5 (INS)—Any motor car used to transport liquor must be forfeited to the state, even if the owner is entirely innocent of the purpose for which the car was used.

The Supreme Court of Errors so ruled today in the case of the state against A. J. Alexandrowicz, who was arrested carrying liquor in another man's car.

3 Burned to Death in Box Car Home

Cicero, Ill., March 5 (INS)—Three persons were burned to death and another narrowly escaped the same fate early today when fire swept a box car home in the colony of railroad track laborers. Only one inhabitant of the car escaped. She is Mrs. Trinidad Espinosa, who dived through a window.

Veterans Held Up in Loan Racket

New York, March 5 (INS)—Authorities went after a new racket today. They sought to stop the sale of application blanks for soldiers' loans after it was learned printed stolen forms were being sold to many victims.

Harry T. Kendall, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Brooklyn, who discovered the racket, said victims were paying 50 cents each for the applications.

Seniors Shy on Dues Can't Hold Office

Hartford, March 5 (AP)—Trinity College seniors are unable to elect a full set of class officers.

Only those who have paid their class dues are eligible to hold office. The seniors met and because of this eligibility rule were able to fill only two of a dozen or more offices. Lauriston L. Scaife of Milton, Mass., was elected president. John F. Isherwood of Fall River, Mass., was chosen historian.

Washington's Kin Still Serving U. S.

Washington, March 5 (AP)—There still is a Washington closely related to the first President in th government service. Retirement recently of Dr. Richard Washington from a post in the Treasury was thought to have exhausted the list, but Miss Ann Madison Washington still carries on.

SUNSHINE MELLOWS

Heat Purifies

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body..

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret heating process. Harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

MARCH is the Danger Time for Pale Run-Down Children

Children are very susceptible to disease in March. After fighting winter's dangers, resistance is at a low ebb, vitality is lessened and they do not have the reserve strength to resist disease. Now is the time to build up health and strength. For over 75 years Father John's Medicine has proved its worth as a body builder, as a tonic for weak run-down children, as an aid to healthy vigor.

This is because Father John's Medicine brings, in combination with other valuable ingredients, all the benefits of cod liver oil in the form best suited to a growing child's needs. Over 184 hospitals and institutions use it regularly. Contains no drugs or alcohol. Following its use, pale, half-sick children pick right up. Colds become few and far between. Weight is added, strength returns. All druggists have it.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face — dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help to bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Sick Bladder and Kidneys are Dangerous

Don't neglect burning passages, painful elimination, harmful irritation and night rising. Correct such ailments at once before they become serious. Doctors for half a century have prescribed Santal Midy for quick relief. Ask it at your druggist.

INDIA REVOLT CALLED OFF BY GANDHI

London, March 5—Mahatma Gandhi and the All-India congress party today terminated the civil disobedience campaign, bringing a temporary halt, at least, to India's political turmoil.

The action was in accordance with the terms of an agreement reached yesterday by Gandhi and Lord Irwin, the viceroy.

The agreement cannot be said to have solved all of India's political difficulties.

Gandhi's Nationalists form a large part of India's, 320,000,000 population, but the Moslems also are an important community and the new settlement is not satisfactory to them. There is a possibility, that they may boycott the projected second round table conference on Indian affairs just as Gandhi boycotted the first conference at London.

The Moslem problem must be settled if political and domestic peace are to be restored. The Moslem party, under the presidency of the Aga Khan, is to met at new Delhi at the end of the month.

A resolution prepared for the Delhi conference states that establishment of dominion status in India with responsibility vested in a legislature is acceptable to the Moslems.

The text of the peace pact was published here today and laid before Parliament and the council of the government of India as a basis for future negotiations.

The essence of the agreement is a virtual cancellation of the civil disobedience campaign and boycott measures which have won for Gandhi and his Nationalist followers a large measure of the demands they outlined a year ago at the outset of their protracted period of passive resistance.

Mussolini Hopeful for Disarmament

Rome, March 5 (AP)—Premier Mussolini today replied to Ramsay MacDonald's telegram of felicitation at the conclusion of the naval accord among Great Britain, Italy and France.

"I am convinced," the message said, "that this accord will be a beneficial influence not only upon relations among the signatory powers but also on the political and economic situation of the world. It is the best possible preparation for the general disarmament conference."

$1200 for Brydges' Dog Derby Victory

The Pas, Manitoba, March 5 (INS)—Earl Brydges, cranberry portage driver, today was to be awarded $1200 for first prize money in the 200-mile non-stop dog derby. He won the event yesterday in 28 hours 30 minutes. Three of his dogs collapsed and rode to the finish on the sled. Shorty Russick of The Pas was second, 18 minutes behind Brydges. Emil St. Godard finished third.

U. S. Bankers to Float Big Loan for Italy

Paris, March 5 (AP)—The Paris Edition of the Chicago Tribune today said American financiers probably would be called on to subscribe almost in its entirety a projected $3,000,000,000 loan to Italy, negotiations for which have been underway simultaneously with the naval conservations.

The Morgan interests were said to be taking a lead in plans for floating the loan in America, probably by popular bond issue.

9 Air Transports Lost in $1,000,000 Fire

Winnipeg, Man., March 5—A fleet of nine Western Canada Airways planes was destroyed in a $1,000,000 fire which destroyed the company's hangar at Stevenson Field, St. James. Flames followed an explosion of undetermined origin in the hangar.

tell about police corruption. One policeman, one lawyer are suspected. That has not yet happened in Chicago, where killings are confined to men, and usually to thugs. To make the death of the miserable New York woman more tragic, there comes news of her daughter's suicide. The unfortunate girl, 16 years old, could not stand the mockery of her high school companions and killed herself.

Other nations lack the "docility" that so impressed the late Lord Northcliffe when he came here. "The American people," said he, "are very docile." He was impressed by our obedience when ordered to stop eating sugar because Europe wanted it. What Northcliffe said of our people is also true of our government, which takes orders about its navy, war gas, etc., very humbly.

Not so with Japan. The London naval treaty "allotted" to Japan fifty-two thousand tons of submarines. Now it develops that France is to have eighty thousand tons of submarines, and Japan says, "Wait a minute, not so fast, we need time to think it over." Uncle Sam, like a good fat baby, says nothing. Whatever they allot is good enough for him. He was not like that before international finance, eager to curry favor abroad, did his thinking for him.

Archbishop Is Improving Fast

Policeman Kills Fleeing Burglar

New Haven, Ct., March 5 (AP)—Failing to heed a warning to stop, Anthony Puzone, 17, was shot dead early today by Patrolman John J. Walsh, who had arrested him and two companions while in the act of entering a store.

The youths broke for freedom while the officer was calling the patrol wagon on a telephone.

Woman Is Killed by Cousin's Auto

Mendon, March 5 (INS)—Skidding and turning over in the middle of a straight road, made slippery by slush, a roadster today crushed to death Mrs. Lucille G. Crockett, 40. The driver of the car, her cousin, Harry K. Greenwood, escaped with slight injuries.

Mrs. Crockett was the wife of Dr. Earl G. Crockett, who is the son of State Senator E. M. Crockett.

Schooner Abandoned, No Trace of Crew

Washington, March 5 (INS)—Coast guard headquarters received a report today that the lumber schooner Emmerald of Baltimore had been abandoned off the North Carolina coast near Frying Pan buoy.

Ships which circled the Emmerald noted no signs of persons being aboard.

Trustees Won't Sell Land for High School

A disinclination to sell any portion of Lyman's field to the city as a site for a new senior high school was expressed to Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham yesterday by ex-Mayor Arthur Lyman, a trustee of the property. The Waltham school committee has approved the land as a site for the school, on condition that the trustees are willing to sell the property.

HAMMER BOY'S NOTES BARED

refresh his mind as regards the important phases of the crime with which he must have been more familiar than any other person.

AND THE MOTIVE.

The first note on the sheet of paper, "Who killed Clara Clement Ellis?" may be stressed by the defense.

The State, it is believed, will use the notes in an effort to show that for Noble all crimes of violence held a morbid attraction which in this case reached the stage where he could not refrain from discussing and writing about a crime that he himself committed.

"Motive for Haverhill crime, robbery or assault. Which?"

Here is another notion which the defense may utilize on the basis of the argument that there could be no doubt regard the motive in Noble's mind if he committed the attack.

A THRILL ATTACK

On the other hand, it may be claimed by the prosecution that the youth was merely placing on paper the possibilities of developing either the robbery or attack phase in the story which he has stated he hoped to write and sell for $150.

Was the hammer attack a "thrill" crime of the Leopold-Loeb type? In the confession which police claim Noble signed, the youth states he beat the widow in order to steal and make up a deficit of school funds entrusted to him.

Against that theory is arrayed these facts: One single piece of inexpensive jewelry of several thousands dollars' worth available was stolen; this was turned over to police by Noble's brother; Noble himself had countless friends from whom he could have borrowed money.

And there is this fact, more important than any other: The attack on Mrs. Ellis was apparently committed in a murderous frenzy not compatible with the theory of theft by a 17-year-old boy. She was struck on the head four times with the hammer and three of the blows landed with such force that they penetrated the skull to the brain.

Many cannot believe that the quiet, studious Noble could have struck those blows. Many who are convinced he did strike them seek a motive other than that of theft, possibly a mental weakness brought on by overstudy or too much reading of murder and mystery tales to which he was devoted.

A NORMAL BOY

Psychologists believe it possible that a person with mentality weakness might plot a crime merely to study public reaction to that crime or use its details in some fanciful story, but such action would manifestly be born or insanity.

Noble was never considered anything but a normal boy, normal in play, study and work, and his taste in literature devoted to crime is shared by thousands of other normal persons, it is stressed.

The notes written by Noble are in the possession of Dist. Atty. Cregg. It has been learned that the day he made them from the newspapers he discussed the hammer attack with two women employed at the library.

Their testimony is expected to play an important part at the youth's trial in connection with introduction of the notations, but whether it will be given for the defense or for the state is a matter of conjecture.

The notations—and the reason for their existence—constitute one of the most puzzling features of a case which grows more puzzling hourly.

Hammer Boy's Notes on Attack

Notes on the attack on Mrs. Ellis, written by the suspected boy, are printed herewith for the first time by the Boston Evening American:

"WHO KILLED CLARA CLEMENT ELLIS?"
"WEALTHY Haverhill widow found clubbed.
"INTRUDER uses hammer in attempt at murder.
"POLICE believe that Mrs. Ellis knew her attacker.
"HAMMER used in attack found by victim's brother.
"MYSTERY caller admitted to home by Mrs. Ellis night of attack.
"POLICE believe woman criminally attacked and then clubbed with hammer.
"TELEPHONE wires cut to prevent police interference.
"MOTIVE for Haverhill crime robbery or assault. Which?
"MAIDS in Ellis home say they heard no outcry.
"ATTACK believed to have occurred between 3 p. m. and 2 a. m.
"INTRUDER entered and left house by front door.
"LITTLE hope entertained for recovery of victim.
"MRS. ELLIS will die.

New Station Sought for Nautical School

Need of a new shore station for the Massachusetts Nautical School was stressed at a hearing today before the Legislative Committee on State Administration.

One proposal is for a building to cost about $1,500,000 on the west bank of Charles River Basin, south of Lechmere Canal.

Charles H. Hurley, jr., of Newton, president of the alumni association, said the present quarters in North End Park are inadequate.

Westwood Cemetery Outlay Held Illegal

State Director of Accounts Waddell reported to Westwood selectmen today that an audit of town accounts for the year 1930 showed $450 appropriated and $448.94 spent for care of a cemetery privately owned.

This is contrary to law, the auditors reported. They found records and financial condition of the town in good shape, generally considered.

ROSS BALM SUIT IN COURT AGAIN

Echoes of an alienation suit in which Dr. Isadore Ross, former West End dentist, was assessed $42,000 damages for having won teh affection of Mrs. Katherine Marden, will be held in Suffolk Foor Debtor Court tomorrow.

Through his attorneys, William R. Scharton and Maurice Paisis, the husband of Mrs. Marden brought action against the dentist to show cause why the damages, awarded in May, 1928, should not be paid.

Dr. Ross filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in November, 1930, but the plaintiff contends that payment of the damages cannot be discharged in bankruptcy.

Dr. Ross now has an office in Roxbury.

Father of Judge Ralph Reeve Dead

Frank Pace Reeve, father of Judge Ralph W. Reeve of the Lynn District Court and Chief Guy Reeve of the Miami, Fla., police, died at his Swampscott home today. He was 73 years old.

He formerly lived in Somersworth, N. H., where he was postmaster and a county commissioner, and in Portland, Me., where he was a manufacturer. He is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters.

5000 Autos on Roads Still to Be Tested

Officials of the Registry of Motor Vehicles state that 5000 motorists have yet to have their cars inspected and tagged with yellow stickers.

It was stated that when these motorists are found on the roadways without the yellow stickers summary action will be taken by revoking the registration of their automobiles for a time.

Tilson Glad Drain on Treasury Ends

Washington, March 5 (AP)—Republican Leader Tilson breathed a sigh of relief today that Congress had adjourned.

"If there was no definite limit on the length of the session and we stayed here until everybody was satisfied," he said, "we would not quit while there was a dollar in the treasury or a dollar could be borrowed."

France Ratifies Arbitration Pact

Paris, March 5 (AP)—The French Senate today unanimously ratified the League of Nations general arbitration act.

Aristide Briand, in advocating ratification, told the Senate the general disarmament conference planned for 1932 was one reason why it could ratify without anxiety.

Chief Donahue Heads Fire Club

At a meeting of the Boston Fire Department Officers' Club, held last evening, the following officers were elected for the coming year: District Chief Charles A. Donahue, president; Capt. Thomas Flanagan, treasurer, and Lieut. John A. Morrissey of Engine 4, secretary.

SPORTS AID TO WORLD PEACE

Former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster of Maine was the principal speaker today at a luncheon held in the Chamber of Commerce building by the Third Olympic Games committee.

"World peace, if eventually that condition is attained, will come not from the parleys of statesmen, but as a result of the contacts established between the nations in the field of friendly sports competition," said ex-Gov. Brewster.

PRAISES SPORTS

Ex-Gov. Brewster concluded his remarks by praising the efforts of the third winter Olympic sports board, and expressing the belief that within a few years New England winter sports centers and those of Maine in particular, would push the cold season activities of Lake Placid off the map.

The luncheon was arranged by Dr. Godfrey Dewey, of Lake Placid club, president of the board of active officers and directors of the third Olympic Winter games committee, Richard Danielson and Walter Channing, of Boston.

Dr. Dewey, the first speaker, outlined the nature of the sports events to be contested at Lake Placid and stressed the fact that the successful staging of the games at Lake Placid will advance the causes of winter sports.

OPEN NEGOTIATIONS HERE

Following former Governor Brewster's address, Wayland D. Towner, of New York and Boston, spoke regarding the financial problems of staging the games. He stated that the total cost of the games was to be $500,000 and that the portion of that sum which must be raised by popular subscription is $250,000. He said that headquarters for the Boston and vicinity fund activities soon would be established at 89 State st., where donations to the fund would be received.

The following attended the luncheon: J. Weston Allen, John Austin Amory, Prescott Bigelow, Charles S. Bird, jr., Thomas S. Blumer, Alexander Harvey Bright, George V. Brown, Walter Channing, Eben C. Clark, Robert Sumner Coit, Louis Curtis, jr., Richard E. Danielson, Livingston Davis, Richard C. Floyd, jr., George W. Funk, John Livingston Grandin, Richard L. Hapgood, Huntington R. Hardwick, Henry P. Kendall, Everett S. Litchfield, Ralph Lowell.

LEGGE WARNS OF 5-CENT COTTON

Washington, March 5 (INS)—Alexander H. Legge, chairman of the federal farm board, today again warned cotton planters to materially reduce their acreage this year or take the consequence in continued lower prices. He said the same things applied to wheat and tobacco growers.

He predicted cotton might even go as low as 3 cents a pound if surpluses continued to pile up.

CONSCRIPT ALL, 'VETS' URGE

Washington, March 5 (INS)—Conscription of capital and labor in the next war, as well as the draft for the army, was advocated by spokesmen for two national veterans' organization today before the commission "to take profits out of war," created by Congress.

The commission, of which Secretary of War Hurley is chairman, has invited leading business men, economists and experts on national defense to state their views. It includes 10 member of the Cabinet and Congress.

Commander Paul C. Wolman of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said his organization solidly backed universal conscription.

Thomas Kirby, legislative agent of the Disabled American Veterans, said his organization had advocated draft of both capital and labor in time of war. He urged preparation for war.

Trooper Wrecks 3 Cars to Catch a Sapp. Dumb? Ha!

Hinton, W. Va., March 5 (AP)—For some reason State Trooper Posten felt suspicious about the car R. S. Sapp was driving, so he followed in his own machine. Mr. Sapp stepped on the gas. So did Trooper Posten.

They were making 60 miles an hour when Posten's bumper became entangled with Sapp's. The cars swerved from the road, plunged through a garage, tangled with a third machine parked there and then crashed through the garage wall and tumbled down an embankment.

$25,000 FIRE IN GLOUCESTER

Gloucester, March 5—The Community building, one of the oldest brick structures in Gloucester, was badly damaged by fire which raged for over four hours early today.

The loss is estimated at $25,000. Flames started from undetermined origin in the kitchen of a lunchroom in the building.

The fire was confined to the one building, and surrounding property was not damaged.

The do-nuts' hole problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

2 ATTEMPTS TO WRECK TRAINS

New York, March 5 (AP)—Officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad said today that two attempts had been made to wreck trains of their lines near Stockton, N. J., last night.

Dynamite was used on a trestle in one attempt, after unidentified persons had placed rocks on the tracks in an unsuccessful effort to derail another express.

Both trains were fast passenger expresses, running between Philadelphia and Stroudsburg.

State troopers and local police of Stockton and Trenton joined with railroad detectives in an effort to discover the would-be wreckers.

Mass. Mother's Lucky Find

WHEN we find that some slight adjustment makes a marvelous improvement in a child we wonder why we hadn't thought before to give the child this help.

A good example is the experience of Mrs. E. H. King, 21 Brackenbury St., Boston. She says: "My little girl was doing fairly well but I noticed she didn't eat like she should and didn't seem to have much energy.

"I wanted to do something for her, and a friend recommended California Fig Syrup, so I gave her some. Larue improved so much I wonder why I didn't do something for her stomach and bowels before. It relieved her sluggishness, gave her a good appetite and plenty of energy."

To point up a child's appetite, increase energy and strength, assist digestion and assimilation, there's nothing more effective than pure vegetable California Fig Syrup. Doctors advise its use to open the bowels during colds and children's diseases, or whenever bad breath, coated tongue, headaches, listlessness, etc., warn of constipation.

The genuine always bears the name California. So look for that when buying. At all druggists.

No Trade War With U. S., Says Magnate

London, March 5 (AP)—There need be no trade war between America and Britain, believes Sir Harry McGowan, chairman of the Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., Britain's largest industrial unit.

He sees the two nations as co-workers in the economic world and he looks to America to lead the way to recovery and believes the United States has interpreted to Britain new ideals of peace, of disarmament of liberty and the international control of disruptive factors.

Idle Man, 76, Dies as He Seeks Food

New Orleans, March 5 (AP)—Six victims of unemployment today volunteered to serve as pallbearers for a comrade who stumbled into a soup kitchen and died.

The dead man, Charles McMillan, 76, was saved from the potter's field by a message from a brother, Daniel McMillan, of Vancouver, British Columbia. The victim before he died said:

"This is the first time in my life I ever asked for help."

Colombia Opens Door to American Oil Men

Bogota, Colombia, March 5 (AP)—The way was paved today for a re-entry of American oil company capital into Colombia, with signature to long-pending petroleum bill and signing of a contract returning the cancelled Barco concession to the Colombian Petroleum Co., controlled by the Gulf Oil Co. and its subsidiary, the Carib Syndicate.

The new law will become effective in 60 days.

Richard Bird to Wed Musical Play Star

London, March 5 (AP)—Richard Bird, actor, and Joyce Barbour, also known on the stage on both sides of the Atlantic, are to be married on Saturday.

They played together in "Havoc" which Bird lists in the Theatrical Who's Who, as his favorite play. Miss Barbour is one of the stars in a musical play here.

Washington Kind to Autograph Fans

Washington, March 5 (AP)—Autograph collectors have in the national capital a seventh heaven.

MRS. CHESTER DECKER R. R. #1, Wheatland, Indiana

"Before my little daughter was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly. I was able to do my usual work and take pleasure in doing it. We were so happy when a wonderfully fine baby girl arrived to bless our home. I have enjoyed better health since the baby's birth than ever before. I am sure that I owe it all to your medicine and I heartily recommend it to all women who are weak or ailing."—Mrs. Chester Decker.

MRS. VERN L. DENNINGS 810 Johnson St., Saginaw, Michigan

"Although I am only 22 years old I have four babies to care for. Before my first baby was born my mother urged me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so terribly weak. I had to lie down four or five times a day. After three bottles I could feel a great improvement. I still take the Vegetable Compound whenever I need it, for it gives me strength to be a good mother to my family. I will write to any woman about it."—Mrs. Vern L. Dennings.

Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our offices one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

This was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Timbuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

(1) Cheap tobaccos.
(2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobacco because of inefficient cleaning methods.
(3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum cleaning apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidor and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us.

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

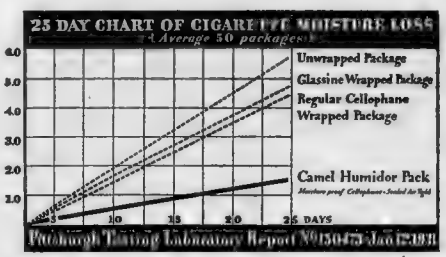
(A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.

(B) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.

(C) Only a waterproof material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection.

(D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph below made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.



Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

YOU may be sure we gave this report a lot of careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this device and that. At last we met success. The air-tight wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have tried Camels packed this modern new way we are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

For some time now every Camel that has left our factory has gone out in this new Humidor Pack.

We have said nothing about it until now, to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced.

We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

'Red Head' Denies Gross Love Theft Charges

Colimo Is in Humor to Make Peace

What Has Gone Before

Louis Scorpio, called "Slaughterhouse," champion steer killer of the stockyards and winner of the revolver prize at the butchers' annual picnic, decided to join the bootleg racket run by Johnny Franks. His decision was clinched by the frameup appearance at Franks' cafe of "Peaches," a beauty of the underworld. The gang invades the territory of Joe Colimo, a rival racketeer, with a truckload of beer. Fight ensued, in which Colimo's brother is killed. Colimo puts Scorpio "on the spot," but fails to kill him. The latter returns to the steak house and shoots Franks to death. "The Secret Six" is organized to fight crime. Scorpio's gang wins out in the election for mayor.

CHAPTER 12

Peaches Begs for Favor

SCORPIO WHIRLED at the epithet and glared at Peaches. His teeth bared in a wolf-like snarl. With a quick step he was before her and, drawing back his hand, he struck her.

The woman reeled back, and her convulsive movement broke the string of large pearls she wore. Like marbles they rattled on the floor and rolled to the corners of the room.

Sobbing and crying in rage and pain, Peachen dropped on her knees and began gathering them up, as blood and tears dropped together on the floor. Scorpio eyed her with disgust. God! A woman you could slap and still she'd grovel on the floor after a broken string of pearls He laughed harshly.

On the Floor

"I've given you a year of my life," blubbered Peaches, as she retrieved the rolling pearls. "I've stood for your rotten abuse—I've tried to make a gent outa you—and now you'd throw me over for the first tramp that comes along—you—you—"

Peaches, on her knees, crawled toward the big gangster.

"Don't, don't throw me over! You may get 'em younger, but they won't stick to you like I would! Let me stay! I swear I won't bother you no more—I won't even say nothing if I see you with another dame—"

Scorpio eyed her, grovelling on the floor, and then recollection brought an evil grin of triumph to his face. He roared with laughter

"Remember—when I told you that one day you'd come crawling on your hands and knees to me?" he asked, between gasps of merriment. "Well—every dog has his day!"

Scorpio Frowned

He picked up his overcoat and hat, looked disdainfully at the woman, and departed, slamming the door

Peaches lay on the floor sobbing, a pathetic though gaudy little heap of rage and woe.

Anne was alone behind the cash register when Scorpio, bound for the party at the roadhouse, came downstairs. The girl was watching, through the window, the excited crowds on the street, the rushing newsboys, and the taxis whirling away, with celebrants en route to Scorpio's "blowout." Hearing Scorpio's step, she turned, as he approached her desk.

"Come into the back room," he ordered, and Anne followed. Without preamble, Scorpio began.

"I got some big plans for you, honey, he announced, and paused, to watch the effect. Anne looked indifferent.

"That so?" she inquired. Her indifference piqued him, still intrigued him.

"Sure!" he remarked expansive-

ONLY FRIENDS, MRS. PERKINS TELLS COURT

Never Said He Was Supporting Her, Lynn Matron Protests

Salem, March 5—Mrs. Katherine Perkins, pretty red-haired Lynn housewife named as co-respondent in the Gross divorce trial, took the stand today in Essex County Probate Court and denied all the charges of undue friendship with Solomon Gross brought by Mrs. Gertrude Gross.

Although Mrs. Perkins has been identified by witnesses as the lightly clad woman who participated in a lively s per party at Sunnyside Inn, Ipswich, at which Gross was host, she testified that she had never been at the Inn, and that her acquaintance with Gross was of a casual nature

She was at one time employed in a radio factory of which Gross was an official, and said that she knew Gross only through routine contacts in the discharge of her duties

Her first intimation that she was to be involved in the divorce proceedings came in June, 1930, when she was called to Gross' office where, she said, Mrs. Gross and her father, Harry Goodman, accused her of accepting gifts from Gross and of being his companion at a Sunnyside Inn party.

According to Mrs. Perkins, Gross asked her

"What do you mean by telling my father-in-law that I'm keeping you?"

She denied having made such a statement, whereupon Mrs. Gross said

"You told my father and me that my husband has been supporting you and paying your bills."

She testified that she had given birth to a child in December, 1930, a month after the supposed party.

QUIZZED ABOUT HAIR

Mrs. Perkins was questioned by Edward Coughlin, attorney for Mrs Gross, as to whether the color of her hair was natural, or if it had been dyed since the beginning of the divorce suit. Miss Florence MacEachern, who told of seeing Gross at the party, said that his woman companion, who wore only a brassiere, had light blond hair. Mrs. MacEachern identified a picture of Mrs. Perkins as the woman, although her hair is dark brownish-red in color.

Mrs. Perkins testified that the tint of her hair is natural, and that she had never varied it by dyeing or bleaching.

Man Leaps as Train Rams Auto in Chelsea

James Glass of 151 Talbot ave., Dorchester, saved his life by a fraction of a second last night when he leaped from his car after he had driven it through the lowered gates onto the tracks of the Boston & Maine in the path of the out-bound Rockport express at Eastern ave., Chelsea.

Joseph Shea, gate tender, tried to signal the engineer to stop by waving a red lantern, but the latter did not see the signal and the automobile hurled the car 20 feet.

Fliers to Meet

The first meeting of the Airport Reserve Officers' Association will be held tonight at 6:30 o'clock at the University Club

GLAD THEY'RE HERE

Passengers, 130 of them, trooped eagerly today from Robert E. Lee at Central Wharf after being storm-bound in sight of goal for 24 hours. Before leaving they signed a message of thanks to Capt. Roberts for courteous treatment in ordeal.

STORM VICTIMS LAND HERE

Twenty-four hours late because of storm conditions, the Robert E Lee, New York-to-Boston steamship, docked today at Central wharf and landed the 130 passengers who glimpsed Boston through a storm all day yesterday and last night

The boat, which arrived in port yesterday morning, was unable to dock because of poor visibility and rough waters and lay in the harbor for 24 hours snow piled on her decks from the bow to the stern.

A voluntary commendation was written up and signed by the passengers, thanking Capt. Robert Allen for services rendered during the trip

Members of the crew said the journey was one of the roughest in their experience, the waves at times breaking high over the prow of the boat and swells tossing it in corkscrew fashion

Among those who landed this morning were the Misses Tina and Wilhemina DeBrau, and Jerry Richards of New York, actresses here for an engagement, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Reuter, of Cora, Wyoming

Police Assailant Given 15 Months

Lawrence Reed, 28, of 16 Churchill pl., Dorchester, was sentenced to 15 months in the House of Correction and fined $50 in Dorchester District Court today on charges of operating a car without authority and assault and battery on Patrolman Royal Atwood.

Atwood testified that Reed and another man beat him so severely in September of last year when he was arresting them for drunkenness, that he spent some time in the City Hospital. Reed left Boston at the time, and was arrested yesterday on his return.

J. B. REUTER

MRS. REUTER

They thought longingly of their home at Cora, Wyoming, far from the sea, as the valiant steamer ploughed through mountainous waves on trip from New York. Now, that they're here, they admit Neptune's rough stuff thrilled them.

HOMAGE PAID TO ATTUCKS

Crispus Attucks, colored leader and first martyr to the founding of the United States republic, was honored today on the anniversary of his death in the Boston Massacre.

The National Equal Rights League opened an all-day celebration of "Attucks Day" with exercises at the death spot at State and Exchange sts. The speakers were Dr. Walter O. Taylor, of the Equal Rights League; Rev. James Mitchell, of St. Bathotomew's Church, Cambridge and Atty Ray Guild of Cambridge

A wreath was laid on the tablet which points to the spot where Attucks fell under the fire of British soldiers.

At the Attucks grave in Granary burying ground Mrs. Anne Johnson and the Rev. E. E. Thompson of Cambridge were the speakers.

At noon Thomas A. Mullen, representing Mayor Curley, laid a wreath on the Attucks memorial in Lafayette mall, Boston Common

SERVICE MEN WARNED OF WILD CAT SCHEMES

Urged by Legion and Better Business Bureau to Beware Fake Promoters

Fake stock promoters and other "white collar bandits," attracted by the lure of the millions of dollars being disbursed to war veterans under the Soldiers' Loan bill, are laying plans to mulct the veterans of their money, the Boston Better Business Bureau charged today.

The bureau today issued a statement warning the veterans of the well-organized campaigns of notorious swindlers who regard the ex-service men as the greatest potential "sucker list" ever known

Among the devices utilized by the swindlers are the familiar wildcat oil stocks and various shady promotions based on the public interest in television

"Veterans who do not actually need the money will do well to leave it with the Government until through investigation has been made of these attractive offerings and promises of quick profits," the statement said

The American Legion has joined the Better Business Bureau in combating the swindlers. Warnings are being issued through all Legion posts.

ONE ARRAIGNED IN VICE CASE

Morris Levine of Roxbury, the first of eight defendants arraigned on grand jury indictments in Boston's vice probe, pleaded not guilty in Suffolk Superior Court today and was released on bail of $500.

Two indictments were returned, one charging him with a statutory offence and the other with enticing a girl.

Warrants for Joan Fielding of Commonwealth ave., Brighton; Sidney Winston, State st., lawyer; Israel Shane, Newton tailor, and Joseph Ackerman, Brighton shoe repairman, were given police for immediate service

Three others face arrest on secret indictments

Mrs. Sankey Leaves Much to Charities

Missionary and charitable organizations were made beneficiaries of the estate of Mrs. Bethia L. Sen of Cohasset under the terms of will, filed for probate at the Norfolk County probate court today.

Bequests were left to 20 philanthropies including $10,000 the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset, $2500 to the Evangelical Missionary Association, Inc., of New York, $2,500 to the Massachusetts Board of Ministerial Aid of the Congregational Denominations, $3000 to the Boston Seamen's Friend Society and $1000 to the Pond House at Pondville, Mass. The residue of the estate is to go to her family.

NEW SOLUTION FOR THEATER PROBLEM

"How to Improve the Theater" will be the topic discussed by J. Camphor Doakes tonight before the Drama League. Mr. Doakes proposes that patrons of the theater, beginning with the person in the first row right, turn, one after the other, and cry, "HUSH!" into the ear of the persons next left. This routine can be followed, row aft r row, all evening, and will not only put a stop to disturbing gossip but will distract and entertain those who are annoyed by the play. If the experiment works, Mr. Doakes will go further, and see that theater patrons are equipped with window weights.

WARNER TO PUSH FIGHT FOR BAIL OF 'HEIRESS'

VETERANS USE LOANS TO PAY DOCTORS

Enabled to Provide Operations for Their Children; Are Thankful to American

The Boston Evening American bureau will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., main floor, 5 Winthrop sq. At this bureau veterans will receive application blanks and instructions for filling them out and filing them with the Veterans' Bureau.

Many sick children will benefit from the bonus loans being obtained from the government by World War veterans, according to the stories told by applicants at the Boston Evening American bureau at No. 5 Winthrop sq.

One of the ex-service men who applied at the American bureau today said three of his four children are in immediate need of tonsil operations. The loan will enable him to provide them. The veteran lives in Somerville.

Another veteran living in South Boston told a similar story. He said two of his children require tonsil operations, having been quite ill during the past winter. He said he has been unemployed several months and has been worried over the condition of his children

LOANS EXPLAINED

For the benefit of ex-service men unfamiliar with procedure it may be stated that the loans now being made may be repaid on the installment plan in multiples of $5 or more. All loans now being made are at the rate of 4½ per cent interest which is compounded annually. No particular time is required for the repayment of these loans.

In the event the veteran never pays back any of his loan if he is borrowing the full 50 per cent allowed, the result will be that only a small per centage of the face value of the certificate (the remaining 50 per cent) will be payable at the end of the 20-year period when the certificate matures.

TIME-LIMIT EXTENDED

For the information of those veterans who have yet to file application for certificates the time-limit has been extended so they still have the right to file. Application blanks are obtainable at the Boston regional office, 600 Washington st.

Many letters continue to reach the Boston Evening American from all parts of New England asking for application blanks. That the American's service is of vital help to a large number of persons who have difficulty in obtaining loan blanks is shown by the following letter from Galen N. Moran of Lubec, Me.:

"The Boston Evening American has done plenty for the veterans and the bonus bill. Without the help of your good paper I would not be able to obtain a bonus loan blank. I am unable to get one here. I need one so I may get my money as soon as possible. If you can send me one I would be more than obliged to you. And that will be another debt that I, as a veteran, owe the American."

WOMEN LEND AID

Several patriotic women continue to volunteer assistance at the Boston American bureau, answering questions of ex-service men and helping them and their wives and mothers in filling out application blanks.

HARRIET PARSONS TO WED STAGE STAR

"HELLO MOTHER"

Mrs. Harry Martin, who is Louella Parsons, motion picture editor of the Hearst papers, has announced from Hollywood engagement of her daughter, Harriet Parsons, to Edward Woods, stage and screen actor. You see mother and daughter in Los Angeles, as Miss Harriet arrives by plane from New York.

IN COLLEGE DAYS

Harriett Parsons graduated from Wellesley College two years ago. She is well known as a magazine writer. You'll recall Woods as appearing in "June Moon" and "The Last Mile." The wedding will take place in June, then a honeymoon. (Staff and International photos.)

FAKE CRABTREE CLAIMANT TO GO TO JAIL

Mrs. Blankenburg Resents the Characterization by Warner as "Charlatan"

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner said today that proceedings against the bail bond of Mrs. Ida Blankenburg of Tulsa, Okla., convicted of contempt in connection with the Lotta Crabtree will fight, are to be pushed.

His statement followed the announcement of Mrs. Blankenburg in Tulsa that she intends to come here within a month to start her six months' sentence, and expressing resentment of the characterization of "charlatan."

In his original announcement that he would proceed against her $1000 bail bond, Atty. Gen. Warner said the action, "would serve as an example to any charlatan coming here to grab money left for charitable purposes."

On learning of the attorney-general's action, Mrs. Blankenburg said she had no official notice the sentence of the lower courts had been upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court. She said she would return to Boston to serve her sentence as soon as her husband has recovered from an accident.

She said she considered Warner's "observation in regard to the case as an insult."

HULTMAN PLANS TO DEPORT REDS

Police will start deportation proceeding against all alien Communists arrested in future demonstrations in Boston, according to an announcement issued by Police Commissioner Hultman

Already Asst. Corporation Counsel Leo P. Schwartz has been in touch with the Washington authorities regarding the removal of Goldie Waldman from the country. She was arrested on the Common last week charged with assault and battery on Special Officer Crowley during a "Red" demonstration.

Yesterday before a scheduled protest meeting on the Charles st. mall got under way, police arrested Benjamin Saul, of Roxbury, and took him to the Lagrange st. station. He was arrested on a federal warrant and taken to the East Boston immigration station.

Saul gained doubtful fame in last week's meeting when he climbed a tree on the Common and used it for a speaking platform during the riotous demonstration. He was hauled from his perch and placed under arrest.

According to Commr. Hultman, the best way to deal with the "Red" element is to deport all aliens among them as soon as they are found to have broken any city laws Atty. Schwartz has been instructed to take such action in all cases, he said

MISS PARSONS TO WED ACTOR

Hollywood, March 5 (U8)—Society's younger set in Hollywood was surprised to learn that Harriet Parsons, well known magazine writer, and Edward Woods, stage and screen actor are to be married in June. Mrs Harry Martin, mother of the bride to be, announced their engagement today. A definite date and their wedding attendants will be announced later.

Miss Parsons, since graduating from Wellesley College two years ago, has achieved a national reputation with her contributions to various magazines. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Martin, (Louella O. Parsons, motion picture editor of the Hearst Newspapers and Universal Service).

Mr. Woods came to Hollywood from the stage, where he had appeared with Pauline Frederick, Doris Keane, and scored successfully in "House Party," "Spellbound" and "June Moon." His work in the play "The Last Mile" secured him a motion picture contract, opposite Dorothy Peterson in "Mother's Cry." At present he is playing the leading role in "The Public Enemy" a First National picture

Lenten Prayer

The Laymen's Call

(Read Luke 10:20 Text, Luke 10:2) And He said unto them, The harvest is plenteous, but the laborers are few.

Only Luke reports the sending out of the Seventy. The Twelve had already been sent out, but they were not enough. The harvest called for more. The service of The Kingdom is no exclusive prerogative of a priestly caste. It is laid upon all who follow Christ and long for a better world. In no community are there reapers enough for the human harvests. The ministry is plainly breaking down under the burdens laid upon it by an indolent but exacting church. A distribution of tasks is called for, which means an enlistment of the men and women, who have already signed up, if they will remember it. The way to save the church is clear and plain. But the greater question is now to save the harvest, which is plenteous. The Seventy are called for. Are you of them?

PRAYER: Lord of the living harvest, we pray that thou will send more laborers into the field. Give to each one of us the grace of obedience, that he may say, "Here am I, Lord; sent me." Amen.

2-ALARM FIRE DOWNTOWN

A two-alarm fire, which officials stated was of suspicious origin, swept through the second and third floors of a four-story building at 68-70 High st. early today, causing damages estimated at $5,000.

Due to the valuable business property in the neighborhood, a second alarm was sounded. Patrolman Hugh Dolan, of Milk st. station, discovered the blaze.

Joseph Savage, of Engine Company 35, was injured when he fell from the second to the first floor. He was treated at the City Hospital for contusions and abrasions of the left hip.

The fire swept the second and third floors, and licked upward to the fourth story and through the roof

The blaze apparently started in the second floor, occupied by the American Manufacturing Company. In the third floor, occupied by the Howe Scale Company, considerable damage was done.

Somerville Budget Shows Big Decrease

Mayor Murphy of Somerville submitted to the board of aldermen the annual budget calling for appropriations to the amount of $4,316,102, which is $509,244.51 less than was expended during 1930.

This year a new item in the budget is $18,000 for the "retirement system," which went into effect this year. Of the total appropriations $2,549,156 is to be raised by taxation and $766,946 to be received in revenue from various sources

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

Man Drops Liquor in Dry Agent Chase

Stanley J. Fontaine, of Clifton rd., Brockton, pleaded not guilty to a charge of transportation and possession of liquor in Federal Court today and was held by Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney in $1000 bail for the grand jury.

It is alleged federal agents found more than five gallons of liquor in Fontaine's possession after they trailed him from Brockton to Whitman and followed him into a house. His arrest occurred when he dropped the five-gallon can containing the liquor over the balustrade of a stairway as the agents entered the house.

Three New Cases of Influenza Listed

Three new cases of influenza, but no attending deaths, and five new cases of measles, with one death, were reported in Boston today to Deputy Health Commissioner Joseph Monahan. Since last Saturday there have been reported eight cases of influenza, with one death, and 20 cases of pneumonia, with seven deaths.

Average figures for the corresponding week the last five years are nine cases of influenza with one death, and 53 cases of pneumonia, with 15 deaths.

A Reporter's Story of the Case of Mary Rogers

MURDER WILL OUT!

TRICKED INTO DEATH

A picnic was planned by Mrs. Marcus Rogers. The husband, a youthful Indian and a 16-year-old girl were included. After lunch, a rope trick was suggested. Mark was to be victim of so called harmless rope trick. Seeing his predicament too late, Rogers was soon chloroformed, choked and thrown into river. Mary Rogers paid the penalty on a New Hampshire hangman's noose.

(Mary Rogers, a bride at 16, plots with an Indian youth and a 16-year-old girl, to kill her husband in Vermont, to obtain $200 insurance she had taken out on his life. The murder, almost 30 years ago, and the extreme penalty accorded the youthful, though cold blooded bride, roused almost the entire nation in a fight to save her life.)

It is recorded that Mary Rogers ate heartily her share of the picnic lunch while they reclined in a wooded knoll on the river bank. She lacked nerves as well as compunction and the immediate scheme at hand failed to affect her appetite.

After they had eaten Rogers reclined with his head in mr wife's lap, and now and again drew her head down to caress her. They spoke of a reconcilia tion and she appeared to be willing enough.

"By the way, Mark, I learned a new rope trick I'll show you," she suggested suddenly. "Did you bring that rope, Leon?"

Leon said he had indeed, brought the rope. Marcus declared he was interested in seeing the trick done

"Well," said Mary, "I'll have to be tied up—or you—you be tied up, Mark, and I'll show you how to do it, Leon, you tie him—wrap that rope twice around his legs."

Perham did as bidden Marcus watched in interest as his legs were bound.

"Now his wrists, Leon. This is a real trick, Mark."

Rogers wrists were bound. The half-breed, binding them, had a case of nerves and was rough. Suspicion was born in the gullible mind of the farm hand and he began to struggle His girl wife threw herself upon him and held him fast while Perham completed his ugly job.

THROWN INTO RIVER

Then Mrs. Rogers produced chloroform, poured some on a handkerchief and applied it to her spouse's nose and mouth.

He struggled in vain. She chloroformed him and choked him. The Bates girl took no actual hand in the proceedings. The birds sang the sun kissed the hills, the nave of August heat danced down the hill and hung over the river—and into the river Marcus Rogers was thrown.

Perham and Stella Bates lost no time in leaving the vicinity. Mrs. Rogers, cool but stupid, cunning but not clever, remained to clean up the signs of a struggle, hung her murdered husband's hat on the limb of a tree and pen a "suicide note."

"I am going to kill myself (she wrote). Do not blame my wife for this, as she had nothing to do with it."

To it she signed Marcus Rogers' name. She pinned it in his hat and went home.

Bright and early the next morning she appeared at the Bennington office of the company that had insured her husband's life, informed the agent that Rogers had committed suicide and requested payment of $200.

The agent called the police. They said they knew nothing of any suicide. The investigation resulted in the immediate arrest of Mrs Rogers, Perham and Stella Bates.

Perham confessed. At the trial a year later, he told the whole story while Mrs. Rogers glared at him in hate. She was sentenced to be hanged, Perham was given a long term in prison and Stella Bates freed.

In the memory of a Boston editor who covered the story, not the murder itself, nor the trial, nor the hinging, but Perham's farewell to his family before he was taken to prison was the most dramatic incident of the hour

BIDS FAREWELL

With the sheriff taking him to Windsor, he walked to his home in Bennington, where waited his father and mother and six small brothers and sisters to bid him goodby. The whole family was in the kitchen when Leon and the sheriff arrived

The father, a gray-bearded farmer, sat staring, his lips moving, but no sounds coming from them. The mother trembled and wept silently. The children gazed in silent fascination

A long time passed in this silence. Finally the uneasy sheriff asked:

"Can't you say something, Leon?"

Leon, his voice husky spoke for the first time

"Have you got any collar buttons?" he asked.

The mother ran into another room and returned with a half dozen collar buttons, which she dropped into Leon's outstretched hand. Again silence fell taut

Finally the sheriff turned again to his prisoner

"Don't there anything else you want to say?" he asked.

"No," gulped Leon, and was led away.

Mary Rogers also waited in the state prison for execution of the death sentence while throughout the country efforts to save her life were begun. Petitions for clemency rolled up like a huge snowball. In Cincinnati, O., alone, some 40,000 names were secured.

John S. Bell was then governor of Vermont. He was a Yankee shrewd, honest, capable He was convinced that Mary Rogers' crime was the most blood-thirsty in the history of her State and he was unmoved in his decision that she should hang.

The State Legislature killed two attempts to save her life, one asking clemency, the other a new trial.

Originally she was sentenced to die on Feb. 3, 1905, but Gov. Bell granted a reprieve in order that the State Supreme Court might review the case. It decided against her and the case was taken to the United States Supreme Court. The highest court ruled that she must die and the final date for the hanging was set for Dec. 9, 1905.

Certain officials at the state prison were among the many who believed the death penalty should not be inflicted upon a woman, and while Mary Rogers awaited for the courts to pass on her pleas she was given opportunity to bring about a physical condition that it was thought might gain official sympathy for her.

This resulted in charges of conspiracy at the prison but no clemency and on Dec 9, 1905, Mary Rogers was hanged.

CAMBRIDGE MAN, TAKEN FOR RIDE, ESCAPES

THREATENED BY GANGSTER GIRL, HE DECLARES

Auto Held Up in Milton by the Traffic Lights Give Him a Chance to Get Away

Charles Carbone, 33, of Inman st., Cambridge, revealed to Milton police today that he was "taken for a ride" by two gunmen from the North End and escaped in Milton when the car was stopped for traffic lights.

He said the "ride followed threats to him by the New York sweetheart of a gangster known as "Ace on Top," now imprisoned at Wethersfield Ct., and dates back to October, 1926, when Charles "Ilo" Brooklyn" Gaglione of the North End was slain in Scollay sq.

The girl charged him with "squealing" on her sweetheart on a Connecticut gun charge and also falsely accusing him of the Scollay sq. murder, Carbone told police.

He told Chamberlain of his fears and further questioning brought the story of the ride today.

Carbone said two men hustled him into a coupe near the North Station last night and the first opportunity he got for escape was at Randolph ave. and Reedsdale rd., Milton, when the traffic lights were against them.

A police officer, on duty at the scene, detained the others from following, he said.

The threats he said started a year ago after "Ace on Top" was sentenced to a term of four to five years at Wethersfield on a charge of carrying a gun in Stamford, Ct. Carbone and another man were with him, but were freed and the girl charged Carbone had squealed.

She also said his involved her sweetheart in the Gaglione shooting and would be paid off, Carbone told police.

Gaglione was shot on the night of Columbus Day, 1926.

SLAM AT JUDGE CARR DRAWS $25 FINE

A charge the judge of being late is no defense, Fred Atkinson, Indio at businessman, learned today in municipal court.

The lesson cost him $25 and an extra forenoon in court.

Atkinson was charged with parking in a restricted area on State st. 10 minutes before the hour when parking is permitted there. He was fined $5.00 suspended, on [illegible] Judge Charle L. Carr came [illegible] The Yankee re marked:

"I've got just as much right to park 10 minutes ahead of time, as the judge has to arrive 10 minutes late."

Judge Carr heard another remark first and it was soon when Atkinson got his $25.00. The judge said:

"I won't hold you in contempt of court, although you haven't shown the proper respect. I will fine you $25."

The result then exploded that it was customary for a judge to wait in his chambers until notified the [illegible] was ready.

Atkinson is an official of the Atlantic Chalk Works and lives on Cypress rd Brookline

FIN. COM. FOR CHELSEA ASKED

A complete investigation of the city government of Chelsea aimed at the elimination of alleged graft and waste, was advocated today by civic leaders of the city before the The committee was considering a bill introduced by Representative John W. MacLeod, which would provide funds for a finance commission to control city funds.

MacLeod declared the property valuation of Chelsea must and the tax rate of $36.60 be driven nanny in portant industrial concerns out of the city

Beck quoted the auditor's report [illegible] expenditure of $5225 for street sprinkling.

"Also, I'd like to know what became of the original $150,000 contracts for the new high school," said the former mayor. "They can't be found, and so our school cost $1,000,000."

S. J. Isenberg, an architect, said, "Chelsea is destroying itself, and the responsibility rests with the present city administration."

Mayor John J. Whalen declared that the creation of a finance commission would accomplish no improvement

2 Held in Holdup of Holliston Bank

Arraigned today in Middlesex Superior Court on charges of armed assault with intent to rob, Joseph Kosak and Frank W. Wood pleaded not guilty and were held in $25,000 each to the grand jury.

The men were arrested after an alleged attempt to rob the Holliston Savings Bank February 7.

It has been written that when the trap of the scaffold was sprung, the woman shot through with such force that the rope was snapped and that she hanged while officials at the prison, leaping over the trap, held to one end of the rope.

Whether this was so or whether the rope merely stretched so that her feet touched the floor has never been definitely determined Prison officials concealed all details, but it w officially announced that she died of a broken neck, not strangulation.

She met death unafraid and refused to make a final statement. She walked [illegible] to the gallows, her face startlingly white against her black dress. Just before the robe was lifted over her head and the noose adjusted, she removed her gold spectacles, passed them to a matron and said

"Please see that my mother gets these."

MINIMUM WAGE BOARD RAPPED AT HEARING

Before the Legislative Committee on Labor and Industries the minimum wage commission was roundly scored by several speakers today for delay in acting against Harvard College where low wages for scrubwomen have long been a mooted subject

Hearing was on petition of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor for appointment of a special commission to investigate the minimum wage commission and its practise

An affidavit from Estelle S. Frankfurter, said to be a sister of Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard, was read. This set forth that she investigated conditions at a laundry and upon inquiring why the laundry had not been advertised by the commission for paying low wages was told the laundryman had it "fixed up" by the commission

E. Leroy Sweetser, commissioner of labor and industries, vigorously denied there was any "fixing" by the commission and said the laundry owner mentioned in Miss Frankfurter's affidavit had denied making any such statement

Paris Hails Debut of Boston Pianist

Georg Flor, young Boston pianist, was enthusiastically received by musical critics and a distinguished audience at his Paris debut, according to Associated Press dispatches today from the French capital.

"Georg Flor" is the professional name of George Smith, well known in Boston musical circles. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith of Brookline. He began his European tour recently in London, and will give recitals at Amsterdam, Berlin and other cities before returning to London for another appearance later this month.

SERIES OF SIX COMEDIES FIRST ON HIS PROGRAM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor for Universal Service

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, March 5—James Gleason has been roped and tied to a long term contract by RKO-Pathe. No longer will Jimmy be allowed to roam about doing his comedy specialties at this and that studio. He remains right on the home lot, acting, writing and giving his best advice.

Charles Rogers, who signed Mr. Gleason, will star him in a series of six comedies. Not only will James do the sort of nonsense for which he is famous, but he will write dialogue and adaptations. I have a sneaking suspicion that RKO-Pathe needed "Is a Wife Child" to make them fully appreciate the talents of Mr. Gleason. Think of getting a dialogue expert and a finished actor all for one salary.

ARTHUR CAESAR, Hollywood's raconteur and popular wit, has just finished a story for Frank Fay called "Poor Gigolo." Perhaps it isn't quite fair to say all the glory belongs to Arthur Caesar, for Frank Fay did a little work on it himself. In fact, the two boys have been working hard on the story which tells the tale of a Paris gigolo who gets all the pretty things in life from rich dowagers and then, alas, to mean the girl he loves and spends all the money he makes at being a gigolo on the girl. The story has all the atmosphere of a French farce.

ACCORDING TO the New York papers, to say nothing of the letters we receive from the folk in town, Ruth Chatterton is having one grand holiday. She and Ralph Forbes are seen everywhere from prize fights to opera. Ruth looking unusually well and getting more attention than she received even in the days of her stage career when she was leading lady for Henry Miller.

WHEN IS RICHARD ROWLAND coming to Hollywood? All of his friends want to give him a royal welcome. There are few people more popular than Dick. The first picture to be made under his regime will be "The Two Gun Man," starring Ken Maynard. Dick always did set great store by Ken Maynard.

TRAVELING ABOUT Hollywood we learn that Charlotte Grenaville, who has a part in "Dancing Partners," William Haines' next, is being brought to California for the Haines picture. There is no stopping three producers once they make up their minds in get Broadway talent. Dudley Digges, excellent actor, is on the First National list playing a part in "Upper Underworld." The whole United Artists organization trooped out to Dana Hayes' Garfield Theater last night to take a look at a preview of "Indiscreet," starring Gloria Swanson. So far I haven't heard anyone express himself on the picture. But Joseph Schenck doesn't make any fivvers, if you know what I mean. David Manners has been borrowed by Harry Cohn to play opposite Barbara Stanwyck in "The Miracle Woman."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: AL SANTELL leaving for Palm Springs to confer with JANET GAYNOR on "Daddy Long Legs." HOOT GIBSON back in town after a vaudeville tour of the East and Middle West. BALLY EILERS and the train to meet friend husband KATHERINE DALE OWEN hostess to a group of friends at the town house. WALLACE BEERY disguising himself with a pair of black glasses at the Hollywood Plaza. KING VIDOR and ELEANOR BOARDMAN honking at the Brown Derby. IRVING THALBERG making reservations for the Montmartre dance for 30 guests. It is Thalberg Rapf night, MR. AND MRS. HARRY RAPF entertaining a group of guests at the Ambassador Hotel for the El Nido benefit. EDDIE SUTHERLAND entertaining a party of friends at Sam Holland's cottage. LORETTA YOUNG and SALLY BLANE at the same place. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Gertrude Wieder Will Give Recital Tonight

A recital of great interest takes place tonight in Jordan Hall, when Miss Gertrude Wieder, an American contralto, makes her local bow before music-lovers. The recital begins at 8:15 o'clock. Miss Wieder's accompanist will be Stuart Ross. On her program will be:

Hero of Musical Romance

GUY ROBERTSON

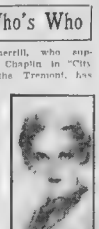
Film Who's Who

Virginia Cherrill, who supports Charlie Chaplin in "City Lights," at the Tremont, has just passed the 20th birthday. She is a natural blonde and her eyes are blue. Her personality is sure to win her much favor in her screen work for she has great charm and personality. Miss Cherrill was born in Carthage, Ill. She was educated at Keniper Hall Convent, Kenosha, Wis., and the Starrett Finishing School for Girls, Chicago. In "City Lights" Miss Cherrill portrayal is a difficult one. Her character is that of a blind flower vender and she is one of three in the cast who are vital to the story. Her work opposite Chaplin will, beyond a doubt, prove that Chaplin was not mistaken when he glanced across a roped arena at the young woman who immediately appealed to him as the one who should be his leading woman.



Virginia Cherrill

Eleanor Boardman

The leading feminine role in Columbia's "The Flood" has been awarded to Eleanor Boardman.

HELEN HAYES IN COMEDY

From advance accounts, Helen Hayes has another triumph to her credit for her interpretation of the role of Peggy Chalfonte, in a new comedy entitled, "Petticoat Influence," by the British playwright, Neil Grant. This is the play in which she is now appearing in New York, and in which she will be seen at the Wilbur, for two weeks only, beginning next Monday evening.

Miss Hayes has not appeared in Boston since she was seen here in "Coquette." She will be supported by Henry Stephenson, as the feature member of her company.

MARION'S NEW FILM LAUDED IN LONDON

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, March 5—Marion Davies, starring in "The Bachelor Father," just released in London, has once again run away with the metropolitan film critics tucked under her arm.

Some of them say that the film version of the play is "light." Others pick minor flaws to the effect that the Hollywood producer didn't conform to authentic British custom in minor points of staging and captions.

But these dissenting note the critics find Miss Davies up to and exceeding her reputation as a defender of the pert, serio-comic type upon which she has built her successes.

THE LONDON TIMES, which is most grudging in its praise of American films and American actresses, says:

"Miss Davies endows Tony Fleet, a product of the green-rooms of New York, with just those qualities which were to be expected of her with a kind of daring frivolity, that is, an impudence that keeps precariously on the right side of impertinence. The film runs successfully up and down to straight lines before Miss Davies as her most sophisticated and Miss Davies at her most sentimental."

G. A. ATKINSON, film critic of the Daily Telegram, states: "Miss Davies has a shrewd understanding of England and the English and knows to a hair's breadth just how far to go in satirizing our foibles and weaknesses."

SAYS THE Empire News: "In this film Marion is—well, just Marion. She is a likeable girl with a nice sense of comedy. The latter helping her considerably to get over a part which might have been more naughty than nice."

The Sunday Pictorial concedes its compliments in a little pill: "I note that nine of our severer critics complain that Marion Davies imitates Marion Davies. I am glad of that imitation, since there is not one quite so fascinating as Marion Davies to imitate. In 'The Bachelor Father,' she is again happily the same."

NOEL COWARD LAUDS PLAY

NOEL COWARD, distinguished English playwright who wrote "Private Lives" while on a recent tour of the world, has just attended a New York performance of "Elizabeth, the Queen," which the Theater Guild will present at the Colonial next Monday.

"Yes," he said to some friends the other night, "the performance of Miss Fontanne is the greatest individual performance I have ever seen in the theater. Alfred Lunt is also splendid."

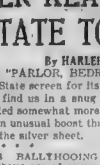
Mr. Coward, at 31, has had 16 plays produced, musical comedy, revue, light opera, farce and drama.

BUSTER KEATON'S HIT AT STATE TOMORROW

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

WHEN "PARLOR, BEDROOM AND BATH" swings onto the Loew's State screen for its first showing hereabouts, tomorrow, it will find us in a snug seat to look and listen, with appetite whetted somewhat more keenly than usual. For the film was given an unusual boost this past week by the management's voice from the silver sheet.

TRAILERS BALLYHOOING the coming shows are of course mere routine nowadays; but that at the State brings a sort of personal guarantee from the management. This is out of the common run, and those who know Joseph H. Brennan, the State's chief executive, know his assurances counts for something. Year in and year out, his house maintains an admirable standard of excellence. It is rare indeed he has ever had a "flop," good pictures are the rule. This is a matter of talk in the industry, as among movie patrons. So hearing the "voice of Loew's" praise the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer farce comedy, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," as an unqualified nod of merriment, sharpens the appetite in anticipation of a real treat.



Joseph M. Brennan

IF THEY CAN get the idea from cast and story, the film should come up to expectations. Note the names: Buster Keaton, Charlotte Greenwood, Reginald Denny, Cliff Edwards, Natalie Moorhead, Dorothy Christy, with Joan Peers and Sally Eilers appearing to uphold the love angle, undoubtedly. And the story—it's the uproariously funny farce of stage fame, which under the same name rocked the rafters of theaters the country over, so great was the audience laughter.

LOU KNOWS HIS FISTIC ONIONS

GENE TUNNEY, as world's heavyweight champion, had many acquaintances, some friends, but few close ones. Gene is not a mixer. He could be genial, gracious, when occasion demanded, but there was a coldness, austereness which drew the line between acquaintanceship and friendship. We doubt if there are more than five men in this country who ever got really close to Gene Tunney. One of these five was his trainer and confidant, Lou Fink

LOU FINK

SO WHEN Lou Fink, here with Tony Canzoneri world's lightweight champion, who meets Sammy Fuller in the Garden, tomorrow night, dropped in on us the other evening we queried:

"Lou, do you think Tunney ever will come back?"

"When Gene quit boxing," answered Lou, "I was sure he was out of the game forever. But I think he is wavering. If Schmeling should defeat Stribling I believe you will see the old champion come back for that fight. There will be a public demand for him to bring the championship back to America.

We asked Fink what Tunney replied.

LOU LOOKED at us out of his shrewd blue eyes and answered

"He didn't say a thing. He just went away in the corner and started thinking. That always was the way with Gene. He never would give a yes or no to any important question. He would just go away and think. Some times he would mull a question over and over for days and weeks before coming to a decision.

"I believe that is just what Gene Tunney still is doing—mulling things over. He will not give a single hint of what is in his thoughts. But I believe he will watch the Stribling-Schmeling contest closely and the public reaction to the match. If Schmeling wins and the public hollers for a Tunney-Schmeling match, and hollers loud enough, I believe Tunney will not remain deaf to public demand."

We asked Fink if Mrs. Tunney might not prevent her husband's return to the ring. Lou answered.

"Nothing, nobody, ever will sway Gene Tunney, once he makes up his mind."

We remarked that Tunney only would be a shadow of his old fighting self if he attempted to come back after a three-year layoff.

"Don't fool yourself," calmly remarked Fink. "He is within six pounds of his best fighting weight right now. He exercises daily. Why Jimmy Bronson and I took him on at handball a few months ago and Gene ran us ragged. One thing that makes me think Gene sometimes will come back is that he is just as good as ever physically. If Tunney wasn't right physically there wouldn't be a chance in the world of his returning to boxing."

GENE TUNNEY

BEFORE we could ask anything further Fink took a hand in the questioning himself:

"I remember, George," said Lou, "how three days before the second Dempsey fight you sat in the dressing room at Lake Villa with Gene and I and told us that Jack's left to the body wasn't what most was to be feared, but that if Gene got at all careless Dempsey certainly would drop him with a volley of overhand lefts and rights to the head. You certainly called the turn. How did you do it?"

IT happened this way. One day at Lincoln Fields, where Dempsey was whipping himself into shape, we noticed Jack was paying particular attention to punching the bag. That was strange. Few boxers use the bag for anything except warming up. Dempsey, in particular, never before got "serious" until he faced a sparring partner.

The second day we saw how carefully Dempsey was in adjusting the bag. Leo Flynn hung it at a certain height right to the inch. Then we noticed Jack was punching it "blind." He suddenly would crouch low and unleash a terrific volley of overhand lefts and rights. Again and again Dempsey practiced that stunt. Jack got so he could crouch low and, swinging "blind," nail the bag with remarkable accuracy with those fierce savage vollies of overhand punches.

A few days before news had been brought to Dempsey's camp that Tunney had cut an eye in training. We put two and two together. We saw that Dempsey with those blind overhand left and rights had two hopes in his fighting. If he failed to knock Tunney out with them he might reopen the cut over Gene's eye.

THAT IS why we told Tunney he better not get careless for just when he thought he had Dempsey beaten Jack might unleash a volley of blind overhand lefts and rights which would pull the brand from the burning.

Dempsey did unlimber that sudden overhand attack. How near he came to bringing home the bacon with it, now is history. If Dempsey only had gone to a neutral corner soon enough after dropping Gene the old Manassa Mauler would have regained the world's heavyweight championship.

JACK DEMPSEY

"What do you think of the Carnera-Maloney match?" we asked Fink. Tunney's trainer replied:

"Don't ask me. I'm too far from the seat of war. Besides, if I can't boost, I don't want to knock."

"But I will say this, that you'll see more action crowded into one minute's fighting in the Canzoneri-Fuller match than you'll see in ten rounds, if it goes that far, in Miami.

"Canzoneri is a great little fighting man. I think he's the greatest little man since Terry McGovern. His only weakness is that he has too much heart and takes too many chances for a champion. I certainly have my troubles steadying him down."

DESPITE he puts in much of his time on his chicken farm in Spenlator and spends weeks at a time hunting and fishing, Lou keeps in close touch with the boxing situation. He thinks Al Mello's return to form is going to help boxing in New England. He thinks that with a few more fights under his belt, Mello will be ready for any of them.

"A Mello vs. Lou Brouillard match later on would be a natural," says Fink. "It would be about the first meeting between two really high class southpaws. I certainly never have seen two leading southpaws meet each other. I would go miles to see Mello and Brouillard in the same ring."

We asked Fink if down in his heart he didn't think Jack Dempsey a greater fighter than Gene Tunney. Lou answered:

"Dempsey was a greater showman but Gene Tunney could whip him the best day Dempsey ever crawled through the ropes."

That is one thing Lou Fink and your humble columnist never will be able to agree on.

Rajah Pays With Son's Life for Cruelty

Jungle justice strikes in last instalment of Frank Buck's epic of the jungles, "Bring 'Em Back Alive." The tiger tortured by the drawing of his claws, rendered helpless by the sewing of his lips, takes terrible revenge for the cruelties inflicted upon him by the maharajah

CHAPTER VI

While the syce finished his job Wendell took me over to his quarters for a drink.

"I need one as badly as you do," he said.

We walked along in silence for a few minutes.

I broke the silence. "Now that they've yanked out that tiger's claws and sewed his lips together, what are they going to do with the poor devil?"

"Oh, you'll see."

H.-P. SET DATES FOR SPORTS

The baseball and tennis teams of Harvard and Princeton will meet this spring, it was announced at the Harvard Athletic Association yesterday. The baseball game will be May 20 and the tennis match April 20, both at Princeton.

Besides the baseball and tennis dates the Crimson and Tigers have already arranged for dual meetings in polo and golf. The indoor polo teams will meet March 21, which will renew the dual rivalry of Harvard and Princeton teams since their break of 1926, while a golf match is scheduled for May 16 as part of the intercollegiate program.

The baseball game will bring the two institutions together in a major sporting event for the first time since the football teams met in November, 1926.

Record Round Wins Tourney for Clark

Orlando, Fla., March 5 Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., professional, broke the course record here and garnered first money in the 36-hole Central Florida open golf championship, with 67—72—143.

His 67 was four strokes under par and two under the course record for the Orlando Country Club.

Walter Hagen was second, tied with John O'Conner, Fort George, N. Y., five strokes behind, at 148. Horton Smith, Willie Macfarlane and Harry Cooper were bracketed next with 150s.

Did You Know That

The number of baseball holdouts, important players at least, is bigger this year than for many seasons past . . . the chances of a U. S. victory in the Davis Cup matches this year are improved greatly by the fact that Jacques Brugnon's recent operation for appendicitis will keep him idle for some time . . . a fast college basketball player runs approximately 2-1-3 miles per game . . . chances for U. S. fast race victories in 1932 are better than at any time in the past three sets of Olympics because long trips to Los Angeles will rob foreign racers of much of their effectiveness . . . Manager Bucky Harris of the Detroit Tigers has denied that he is to farm Gene Desautels, last year's Holy Cross catcher, to the Toronto club . . . the Yale lacrosse team is going in for night practice; if the football squad was sent out at night the resultant "reformers" chorus would deafen the country . . . AND JUST 25 YEARS AGO . . . the Fordham University track meet pole vault was won with a vault of 10 feet . . . the 1906 football rules committee adopted the rule against hurdling . . . E. B. Parsons of Yale, world's indoor 880 record holder, shattered the indoor 600 mark with a 1-14 performance in New York.

Tufts Matmen Win Over Tech, 27 to 5

B. C. Golf Team to Make Trip South

For the first time in history a Boston College golf team will make a southern trip. Five games have been scheduled:

April 4—George Washington U., at Washington; April 6—William and Mary, at Williamsburg, Va.; April 7—Duke University, at Durham, North Carolina; April 8—University of South Carolina; April 10—Georgetown University, at Washington.

WEATHER BAD; BOUT MAY BE FINANCIAL FLOP

CARNERA HAS 73 POUNDS ON MALONEY

Miami, Fla., March 5 (AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, had a 73½ pound advantage on he and Jimmy Maloney, Boston fighter, weighed-in this afternoon for their scheduled ten round bout tonight. Carnera weighed 273 and Maloney 199½.

Dr. H. Frank Davis official physician for the Miami Boxing Commission, said after an examination that Carnera was ready for the fight. The Italian received a fractured rib in truing some time ago and appeared at the commission office with his chest tightly taped.

Miami, Fla., March 5 (AP)

To the somewhat fantastic fistic history of this famous winter playground the boys were prepared to add the 10-round battle of the cracked rib tonight, featuring the ponderous puncher from Italy, Primo Carnera, and the Irishman from Boston, Jimmy Maloney.

Miami and Miami Beach have known the peak of boxing's boom days where two years ago the Stribling-Sharkey bout drew over $400,000. The downward slide since then has been marked by the Sharkey-Scott fiasco, a losing venture of 1930, and the financial distress attending the Walker-Risko show a week ago in the Madison Square Garden stadium here

For various reasons, despite his prominence as a gate attraction everywhere he has been on display Primo Carnera a return joust with Maloney has failed to stimulate either the local fistic pulse or the cash customers from elsewhere.

It was not until a week ago, in fact, that attempts to call off the show, following the development of Carnera's fractured rib, were abandoned.

Under such circumstances, Promoter Frank J. Bruen found the bally-hoo and the build-up difficult, despite the aid of a seasoned metropolitan staff. He continued optimistic today, even in the face of a disappointing advance sale, in the hope he might be right at that even.

Rainy, Cold Weather Hurts Fight Prospects

Rainy weather upset the program last week, and an unseasonable drop in temperature within the last day has chilled the prospects for tonight

Otherwise the customers cash and otherwise, expected an evening of entertaining activity, capped by Carnera's effort to revive his sagging prestige.

The Italian, unless he reverses the decision scored over him by Maloney in Boston, figures to be a difficult subject to build up for a title match against the winner of the Schmeling-Stribling fight. Carnera already is signed for this important late-summer engagement.

Primo was expected to have upwards of a 65 pound pull in the weights, a doctor in his corner to treat his damaged rib and instructions to try for an early knockout.

The preliminary card was headed by an eight-round match between Maxie Rosenbloom of New York, light-heavyweight champion, and Marty Gallagher of Washington, D. C. Rosenbloom's title was not at stake.

Promoter Bruen banned ringside broadcasting and fixed the main go for about 10 p. m. (Eastern time).

Manchester (N. H.) Legion Series Scene

Concord, N. H., March 5 (AP)—Manchester has been awarded the eastern sectional games of the American Legion junior baseball league, Frank N. Sawyer, adjutant of the New Hampshire department announced today. In the games the champions east of the Mississippi River will compete for the right to play the western titlists for the national championship. Six teams will compete in the tourney which is scheduled to take place in August.

Friars Beat Brown for Court Title

Providence, March 5—Brown University's basketball team had no match for Providence College in the annual city championship game, the Friars winning, 47 to 26, without being pushed at any time.

Kosiowski, McCue and Brandon starred for the Dominicans, Perkins was Brown's best scorer getting 12 of his team's points

JIM MALONEY AND HIS FAMILY

Jim Maloney, who meets Primo Carnera at Miami tonight, is shown in a peaceful pose with his wife and two children. Jim has trained hard for his bout tonight and is confident he will win. Maloney looks quite unconcerned here, but tonight—he'll be off like a blast of dynamite to demolish Carnera, the "Ambling Alp."

Passing the Puck

After the disappointments and heartaches, he has suffered this season, watching game after game slip out of his grasp, Manager Eddie Powers will welcome the finale to the present drive for third place of the Can.-Am. League.

Until Benny Grant was brought down from Toronto, the Powers team chances of finishing in the money were almost ruined by poor goal tending. They lost enough tough games to take the heart out of any club but by some superhuman effort, Manager Powers kept them fighting and now they are about set to reap their reward

As evidenced by their victory over the Springfield Indians, with both Yank Boyd and Jack Pratt out of the lineup, the Cubs are a game aggregation. In fact, the success of the Tigers in the past was rated on a 75 per cent consensus and a 25 per cent ability basis.

Lester Patrick of the New York Rangers thinks highly of Eddie Burke. He has seen Burke in action in Springfield and was very much impressed with the all around ability of the Cub center ice man.

Lennie Collins, better known as Pond, who is a hockey official of some repute was a recent visitor to the Arlington board of selectmen.

If the Rangers make the play off grade, they hope that the Americans are also successful. According to Lester Patrick, the Rangers do not fear the Maroons other than the financial loss they will suffer should the Montrealers note out the Americans. The press at Madison Sq. Garden is $27,000 against $11,000 at the Forum, plus the expenses.

With the fans around the National Hockey League circuit declaring for either Eddie Shore or Howie Morenz to be the winner of the Hart Trophy, the committee is on the spot.

According to reports from Madison Sq. Garden, the long drawn-out controversy between Col. Hammond and Lester Patrick is on its last legs.

TECH ATHLETE WINS TITLE

Bror Grondal, representing Massachusetts Tech, defeated a strong field of shot putters in the New England A A A U indoor shot putting championship held at the East Boston gym, Paris st.

On his final heave the husky Tech athlete put the iron ball a distance of 42 feet, 9½ inches, which handily beat Jack Healey, the former Worcester Academy all-round athlete and now a Harvard freshman, who was unable to hurl the iron sphere more than 41 feet, ¼ inches.

Carl A. Peressolides the star Crimson freshman showed that he was some shot putter as well as a sprinter, by securing third place.

Boston Pair Start Defense of Title

Philadelphia, March 5 George W. Wightman and F. P. Fraser of Boston, holders of the national court tennis doubles championship will begin defense of their title today. They meet the New York team of A. Loth and W. Loth, who opened the tournament today at the Racquet Club by disposing of Alexander Biddle and Russell Thayer of Philadelphia, 6—1, 7—5, in the first round.

Billiard Star Will Play Twice Today

Johnny Layton of Illinois, nine times holder of the world's three-cushion billiard championship, will conclude his performances at the State Billiard Room today, meeting Harry Kember of Worcester in the afternoon match and John Mills of Boston in the evening match.

FULLER READY FOR BIGGEST RING TEST

By RINGSIDE

Tony Canzoneri and Sammy Fuller have completed training for their ten round bout which will be staged at the Boston Garden tomorrow night The rival thumpers will take things easy today so that they will have all of their strength when they step into the ring.

Fuller has had to watch the scales closely so as to keep above 135 pounds. The articles of agreement require Sammy to enter the ring above the lightweight limit and so Canzoneri's title will not be at stake.

Fuller has been 135 and a fraction pounds for most of his recent bouts At this notch he is strong and punches like a middleweight.

The North End youth realizes tomorrow night's bout will give him his big opportunity and he intends to make the most of it.

Canzoneri finished his training at Toland's Gym. While there, he met Sam Langford, old-time ring star, whose fight has been greatly impaired Tony chatted with Sam, and then slipped some money into the famous old boxer's duke.

50 Bouts Expected at St. Joe's Show

It is expected that there will be at least 50 bouts at the St. Joe's T. A. Society's amateur boxing show at Mechanics Building on Saturday night. There will be contests at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds. The winners and runners up will compete in the New England championships which take place at the Arena on March 16

Lawrence will stage an amateur show tomorrow night to see what boxers will represent that city in the New Englands. There will be bouts at 118, 126 and 160 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

The plan of having sectional tournaments, with the best boys then competing in the title matches here will tend to keep the entry list down and also bring about a better brand of matches.

GUS ON TITLE HUNT

Gus Sonnenberg, shown above, wrestles Lee Wykoff tonight at the Boston Arena, in the first match of Gus' big drive to regain the heavyweight crown he lost to Ed George recently. Gus is confident he will be champ once more. A win tonight will further that ambition.

B.C. GRID STAR MAKES DEBUT AT ARENA

By JACK CONWAY

Gus Sonnenberg, former world's heavyweight champion, will come roaring back into the mat game when he clashes with Lee Wykoff, who won fame in athletics at the University of St. Louis, in a finish bout at the Arena tonight under the direction of Paul Bowser.

Best two falls out of three will decide the winner.

It will be Sonnenberg's first bout since his recent trouble with his eyes. Ulcers on the right eye compelled Gus to remain on the inactive list for three weeks.

Jack Conway

Dynamite Gus says he is in the best of condition for his meeting with Wykoff. He intends to get a fiery pace from the start in an effort to wear his rival down

Sonnenberg and Wykoff collided at the Arena in January. On that occasion each scored a fall. Lee was giving Sonnenberg a great deal of trouble when he missed a tackle, went flying through the ropes and suffered an injury when he crashed to the floor of the Arena.

Sonnenberg, in view of his experience, has been installed a slight betting favorite

Al Morelli, who won fame at Boston College as a football player will turn pro tonight when he will collide with Rex Smith of the University of South Dakota in one of the supporting bouts.

Jake Patterson of Syracuse University will mingle with Frank Dellemano in another match, Pat McKay will tackle Jack Sherry, while John Spellman will oppose Axel Anderson.

Bowser has arranged for a private wire to the ringside at Miami, Fla., so that he will be able to give his patrons a round-by-round story of the Maloney-Carnera match

Lee Wykoff vs. Gus Sonnenberg. (Best two in three falls.)

Al Morelli vs. Rex Smith.

Pat McKay vs. Jack Sharry.

John Spellman vs. Axel Anderson.

Four-Team Tie in N. Y. Six-Day Race

New York, March 5 (AP) Four of the strongest teams in the pack continued deadlocked for first place in the current six-day bicycle grind at Madison Square Garden today.

Those out in front were the combinations of Freddy Spencer and Norman Hill, Bodger de Nef and Adolf Charlier, Alfred Letourneur and Marcel Dupuimbien and Emil Richili and Willie Grimm. They had ridden 1514 miles 9 laps

B. H. C. to Be Given Welcome by Poles

The Boston Hockey Club runners-up in the recent world's amateur hockey championships here recently at Krynica, Poland, will be tendered a reception and official welcoming home at the monster Polish clubhouse of the Polish Societies of New England at the Boston Arena next Saturday evening

Somerville Five Wins 10th Straight

Somerville high won its 10th straight game and its second in three days when it defeated Everett high, 38 to 32, at Somerville high gym. The superior passing of the Somerville five combined with some brilliant shooting by Arnis Luodquist and Garland Winn, proved too much for Everett

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Degrees of experience in athletic activity are measured almost wholly by varying degrees of rhythm as applied by various exponents in any athletic competition. Tom Kane Napoleon Lajoie Gladstaad way I picture the greatest baseball second baseman of all time. The crack of the bat was greeted by his rhythmic instantly without effort. Turning himself nimbly, he managed to get in front of the bounding ball—

STAGEY FORWARD SWING

Nick Carterlike, or just in the knick of time. You nearly always thought he would fail to get there, but he seldom did. The swing of your golf club is an action much like big, awkward-looking Lajoie lumbering almost rolling, toward the oncoming baseball. Your swing should start forward slowly, easily, without jerk—go smoothly and easily that at first it may give rise to the thought that your whole action will get away from you The opposite happens. You find it gathers speed increases its smoothness and power

HAWKS OPPOSE OTTAWA SHIFT

Chicago, March 5—Maj. Frederick McLaughlin, owner of the Chicago Blackhawks of the International League, said he would oppose any move to transfer the Ottawa franchise here.

National League territorial rights in Chicago are controlled by McLaughlin, and no other franchise in the same circuit may be moved here without his consent The Ottawa club, which is said to have lost money for several years, probably will remain in Ottawa

Thomas Shaughnessy and James Norris, owners of the Shamrocks, of the American League, were willing to pay $225,000 for the Ottawa franchise, if it could be moved here.

Syracuse Captain Sets Swim Marks

Syracuse, N. Y., March 5—Two world's records were broken by Joe Wolf, captain of the Syracuse University swimming team in official time trials here. The records lowered were in the 500-yard backstroke and the 880-yard backstroke events with the orange ace clipping 7 2/10 seconds from the former world mark and 5 8/10 seconds from the half-mile record

2 N. Y. Fights Await O. K. of Commission

New York, March 5 (INS)—Two proposed Madison Square Garden fights today awaited approval of the boxing commissioners. The first is the Leo Harvey-Vince Dundee scrap, scheduled for March 20, and the other includes Fiesel La Barba and Kid Francis, featherweights, match I for April 1

Bill Terry Offered $22,500 by Giants

San Antonio, Tex March 5—John McGraw manager of the New York Giants doesn't want the impression to go around that "Bull" Terry, holdout first baseman has not been offered an increased salary as reward for leading the National League in batting last year.

"We have offered him $4500 more than he got last year," said John. "His 1931 contract calls for $22,500, not bad for a young fellow."

New Haven Wins

Providence, March 5—Rhode Island Reds crushed the New Haven Eagles, 7 to 3, in a Canadian-American League game here. The last contest between these two clubs on the local ice this season.

HIGH-PRICED TRIBE ROOKIES MAKING GOOD

RECRUITS ARE PROVING WORTH

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 5 —Robert "Red" Worthington, hard clubbing outfielder, who was bought by the Boston Braves along with Wes Schulmerich, the husky comet slugger and Charlie Wilson, another heavy hitting third baseman, for $100,000, is almost sure of a job at right field if he continues the way he is going in the practice games here.

The flashy red-head proved that he is the real goods. He can hit, run and is a smart outfielder. The Braves made no mistake when it purchased Worthington. He is a valuable player and is certain to make a big hit with Boston baseball fans this season

Worthington Hit for .376 Last Year

"Red" is a product of Alhambra, Cal. He batted for .376 last year with the Rochester club. He stands 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 175 pounds.

Wilson, who was bought from the same club as Worthington, is a fine third baseman, and is making a bid for that position along with Buster Chatham and "Bucky" Walters, a former Providence star.

Wilson is big, powerful, and can hit, and is a fine major league prospect He was injured in a practice game, however, and may be out with a damaged knee for a few weeks. He was spiked by Leonhardt while he was covering third base.

Schulmerich Has Not Yet Hit Stride

Schulmerich, the other member of the big three, has yet to show what he is made of in the training camp here. The huge Oregon boy has failed to click any since he has been here.

For that matter, neither has Walter Berger, the home run king. The boys, however, have not hit their stride yet, and it is figured that in a few more days they will be slamming the old onion good and proper.

It is expected that Schulmerich, Berger and Worthington will hold down the outfield positions this season. The three are doing excellent work there in the practice games.

SOX THRIVE ON HARD WORK.

By JOE CASEMAN

Pensacola, Fla., March 5—Rookie or veteran, it makes no difference

Within 24 hours after reporting three of the five late arrivals were playing in an exhibition game.

Hal Rhyne was excused because he is still rather weak after an attack of "flu," and Otis Miller escaped because he wasn't in time to don a uniform Tuesday

The early birds learned the first day out that Collins means to have a snappy fighting ball club this year and the entire squad knows it now.

We heard two of them talking in the Gas Cafe lobby today.

"Well," said one, "we will at least have some spirit and pep on the ball club this season."

"Yes," said the other, "And I'm mighty glad of it."

While not even Collins knows at this early date just how the Sox will lineup at opening of the season, it is safe to wager that the same players who started as the regular team in the mid-week practice game, with the exception of the battery men, will all be on the job against the Yankees in New York on April 14.

Boston School Four Sets Relay Mark

Its four composed of Sidney Rezak, "Bucky" Gore, Benje David and Ike Sheehan, tinned off the half-mile in 1 minute and 48 2-5 seconds while defeating its Blue and Blue rival. This figure betters the regimental record set by English high in 1929 by two-fifths of a second.

ders a tiger helpless and tosses him to a lot of big dogs. Gets a kick out of seeing how soon they can tear the tiger to pieces. Today's show ought to be the best he's ever pulled, or the worst, whichever way you look at it. You ought to see the brutes o dogs he's got. Six of 'em. That's one more than he's ever used before."

"You aren't going to attend, are you?"

"Beg pardon, Jim."

"I don't blame you for staying away. This isn't going to be a fair fight. Just a bloody massacre."

ALL WASHED OUT

We were now in Wendell's quarters. He produced a bottle of Scotch and we had a drink that wasn't productive of much conversation. I recall mumbling a few words a praise of the whiskey. It was all I could think of to say. I felt all washed out.

We had a second drink. I started feeling better, but still I could think of nothing to say. I sat there staring at the bottle and wondering how soon I could ask for another drink without seeming a hog.

GETS ON NERVES

My silence began to get under Wendell's skin. Suddenly he broke out into a great jumble of unrelated sentences . . . "Crazy game, isn't it? Crazy country, crazy people. What does it all mean? But what does anything mean? Suppose the prince didn't throw a helpless tiger to a pack of hungry dogs? It would still be a lousy world, would it? Let him have his fun. What do I care? It's none of my business and it's none of yours . . . Inherited brutality, that's the answer. The prince's father was even worse. Yes, worse; ask any one that knew him

"Life's unreasonable, that's what we are, Frank. Unfair. Even a little intolerant . . . Yes, I know all about it. The prince is a cruel scoundrel. But he learned it from his father. What do you expect? There's the prince's little boy. When he grows up he'll be cruel, too. He'll see so much cruelty all around him that he'll regard it as the accepted thing, as part of the business of preparing to be a prince. And, anyhow, who cares"

"Let 'em all kill one another off, human beings and animals. India can stand a few casualties. She's terribly over-crowded. Its too bad they're usually the wrong ones. Don't stare me out of countenance. Look at the bottle for a change. Have a drink. Don't have a drink. Do anything you please. See the Maharajah's show Don't see his show. Who cares. Please yourself. Blow your brains out if that'll make you happy. There's a gun over there in the top draw of my desk

'FIGHT' DESCRIBED

"Wow! It's getting late. I've got to have a look at those dogs I'm supposed to keep 'em mad at the world in general and tigers, in particular. Got any ideas? Think I'll try putting on a striped suit and spitting in their eyes. Lets get out of here. The prince'll raise the thunder if I'm late. He's a stinker that way."

Wendell was himself again. His long colloquy, instead of wearing him out, seemed to pep him up. On the way back to the stables he was his old genial self again; as we strode along he seemed positively happy. One comes to regard such changes of mood as a commonplace in India. The thing's in the air.

I did not attend the "fight" between the tiger and the dogs Pardon the quotation marks Pull a tiger's claws and sew his lips together and you can't expect much of a fight.

But there was plenty of drama. The cruel exhibition, as planned, should have resulted in the loss of only one life, the tiger's. In addition, one human being and one dog peri ed. That was where the unexpected entered.

Wendell and Lal Bahudar (who watched the proceedings, or most of them, from his old perch among the flaming red blossoms of an adjacent plane tree) supplied me with the details of what took place

The helpless tiger and the six dogs were turned loose in the walled enclosure. The dogs were of tremendous size and great ferocity. They were a cross between a mastiff and an Irish wolfhound. Almost invariably the result of this combination is a huge vicious animal. I have seen quite a number of these dogs in India. They are used for boar hunting and sometimes are known as "boar-hounds." The colorings are brown and white, black and white, plain black and plain brown.

The tiger, the ends of his paws gruesomely bloodstained and his mouth distorted into a grotesque expression as a result of the catgut that sealed his lips, was a ghastly sight to behold. Half bewildered, he hobbled about in circles on his bloody stumps, probably trying to figure out why this new torture was being visited upon him. He had a right to expect a rest for the day after the earlier horror that had been his portion.

The dogs did not spring at the enemy on sight. Dogs have too much native caution for that. After all, a tiger is a tiger

Discretely they edged closer to the hobbling foe, backing him against the wall. For a full minute, according to Wendell they stood this way. The inaction of the big cat emboldened one of the dogs to come close and snap at the hind quarters, hastily withdrawing. All the tiger did by the way of reply was to lift one of his aching paws. That was all.

The dog that had snapped at him, repeated the performance and the others, encouraged by the tiger's inactivity, joined him. In a second they were all snapping away at the impotent enemy, barking furiously as they attacked.

ONE TOOTH FREED

To save himself the tiger started rolling over on his side toward the middle of the enclosure. By sheer dint of his weight he succeeded in scattering the dogs and gaining a respite His sides were bleeding but no serious wounds had been inflicted. The dogs had not managed to sink in their teeth. The wounds were all on the surface

Again the dogs cornered the foe, all of them piling on after one of them had sampled a mouthful of the bone skin around the flanks. This time the tiger was painfully mauled

TODAY'S TRUE STORY

HIS RACE WITH DEATH

Dared All for Love

OUTSIDE it was raining, a beating, driving rain that splashed in deep pools on the soaking earth. It had been raining for three days, it seemed that it had been raining forever.

The door leading to the bedroom opened, John Pearson put his watch into his pocket and stood up. He addressed the man who stood in the doorway.

"What is it, doc?" he said.

Dr. Clinton looked back into the bedroom before he answered. Both men heard the sound of a woman moaning. Then the doctor spoke.

"We'll have to get her to a hospital—Charleston," he said.

John Pearson looked at the rain-beat windows.

"How much time?" he said.

"Two hours," answered the doctor. "Maybe a little more. It's her heart. The strain, you know. I don't like the—"

John Pearson interrupted.

"Come on," he said.

At 8:02 John Pearson was in the cab of No. 3. For twenty yards ahead the wet rails glistened in the powerful headlight. Beyond that the light was choked in the blackness and rain.

John Pearson beckoned to Sam Lavery, the fireman. He spoke; short, terse sentences. Sam's eyes narrowed. He thought for a moment. Then, "Let her zip," he said.

John Pearson opened the throttle. There was a roar of exhaust and the giant drivers spun on the slippery rails. Then they caught and No. 3 was moving out with John Pearson's wife lying on a bunk in the caboose in the rear with Dr. Clinton bending anxiously over her.

Above the roar John Pearson heard a voice calling his name. He leaned out the cab window and saw a dispatcher running after the moving engine. He was close enough for John to see the yellow message in his hand. But John merely shook his head and pulled the throttle farther open.

From Benson to Charlestown is 86 and a fraction miles and main train flags. There the several steep grades in the track and sharp turns, too. The best running time for No. 3 was two hours and 23 minutes.

That night, that March night, No. 3, with John Pearson at the throttle took the first turn outside Lawson's 56 miles an hour. It was a long, sloping turn, on a slight up-grade. No. 3 usually went around it at less than 40 miles an hour.

Sky and the grade there is a 20-mile level, straight as an arrow. A funnel of light bored along it and behind the high-brass engine cab, bell and bullet. The throttle was all the way back, back as far as it would go, and John Pearson was looking straight ahead with eyes that could see nothing.

Sam Lavety's face glistened with sweat as he raked open the fire door and his tireless arms swung. The drooping steam pressure halted and began to climb again. John Pearson looked but neither man spoke.

They roared over Mad Woman Creek on a stone bridge in a single arch and the open fire door threw a ruddy gleam on brown water only five feet below the bridge floor. It had been raining in the mountains, too, and that brown water was coming down in freshets, torrents, floods.

John Pearson looked at the light-reflecting water that seemed to reach up for him in his swift flight, and he pictured of the running dispatcher came back into his mind. He had understood the message though he hadn't waited for it. He had understood—and his mind went ahead to the trestle over George's Creek.

But the throttle stayed where it was.

Thus, rolling, rocking, hanging to the rails by the grace of God alone, No. 3 came down the trestle over George's Creek. Sam Lavery dropped his shovel and ran to the cab window. His men peered ahead. They could see nothing, they could hear nothing, save the pounding of the giant drive wheels and the sharp hiss of steam. Then they picked it out—the water over the tracks.

Sam Lavery looked at John Pearson, but John was looking straight ahead. One hand was on the throttle and the other was clenched on the sill.

And so they hit the trestle. Years later old-timers used to say that when they rebuilt that trestle and called it "Pearson's Bridge" they could see the marks where the last of those express cars had struck the stone abutment as the trestle collapsed beneath them. They not only said it—they swore it.

But it isn't true, of course. Had No. 3 been on time, had it been 20 minutes later in crossing the trestle, it might have been true. But 3 went down then, after No. 3 was over and clear. It went down just at that dispatcher had known it was going down, having been warned from Charleston and told to hold No. 3. It went down as John Pearson had known it was going down.

But John Pearson hadn't cared. If he couldn't get over, he didn't care if it did go down and carried him with it. He had to get over because the woman who rode in the caboose had to get over. She had to get over or die.

She did get over. Her husband took her over and he got her to the hospital, where three hours later his son was born. His name: John T. Pearson, Jr., who is now president of the Charleston & Southwest Railroad.

He is the president, but he isn't the one for whom they call it "Pearson's Bridge." When railroad men speak of that bridge they mean his father.

Treating of Lead Poison

By DR. COPELAND.

MEN CONSTANTLY exposed to lead are likely to suffer from lead poisoning. It is common in lead workers, house painters, gilders, artists and others who are brought in constant contact with the metal in one form or another.

You will be surprised to learn that, in very small quantities, this metal is found in flour, beer, cider, wines, teas, vinegar, sugar and candies. It is found in numerous drugs, especially those manufactured by the aid of sulphuric acid.

In view of the rigid food regulations maintained by each State, we rarely find cases of such poisoning due to eating food. These precautions are applied, too, in the manufacture and sale of drugs.

Acute lead poisoning is not common. When it occurs it is seldom fatal. The symptoms come on suddenly. There is a metallic taste in the mouth with a burning sensation. There is a feeling of great dryness in the mouth and throat. Vomiting, followed by marked retching and pain in the abdomen, is another symptom. The pain and discomfort are stubborn, and, though recovery occurs, it may be delayed for some time.

The chief sign of chronic lead poisoning is the general ill health that always accompanies it. The digestion is poor, the appetite lessens, and the bowels are upset. The skin assumes a peculiar color, often appearing almost yellow.

Advanced chronic lead poisoning may involve the eye, producing partial or total blindness. The kidneys may become affected.

In treating chronic lead poisoning, it is essential that the affected person be removed from all contact with lead. Rest, plenty of fresh air and sunshine, and nourishing food, are advised. Careful nursing and hygienic living usually restore the individual.

What's New in Coming Fashion

By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, March 5—That glove box of yours is going to be fuller this spring than for a long time—if you follow the fashion in dresses, coats and suits.

Because there are several different sleeve lengths—all in fashion—and each sleeve length requires a different length glove.

There was a time a few years ago, when short gloves were worn with short little sleeves. But not today. The shorter the sleeve, the longer the glove, is the fashion idea.

And that makes five lengths of gloves fashionable for daytime—worn with four different length sleeves.

With Long Sleeves

The shortest—and the one everybody's most used to—is the four-button length. It's worn with coats and suits that have full-length regular sleeves, and with some dresses with long, closely fitting sleeves.

The six-button glove is worn with these same costumes by fashion-knowing women who like their gloves to wrinkle in a smartly careless sort of way. You can see the effect in the sketch

With Three-Quarter Sleeves

This six-button glove can be worn with the new three-quarter coat, suit or dress sleeve. But better looking with this length sleeve is the glove that's two buttons longer—the eight button.

It comes up higher and can be wrinkled more.

Some women will wear this eight-button glove with sleeves that stop just above the elbow. But again, the longer, 12-button glove gives you those few wrinkles that make the difference between smart-wearing and just wearing.

The eight button glove has to be pulled straight to reach as far as it ought to reach with this above-the-elbow sleeve.

With Cap Sleeves

When still shorter sleeves—cap length—go out on the street without a coat, you've a choice of four fashion gloves—depending on whether or not you want to cover the elbow.

And a good way to decide this is to try on both kinds before a

White for Accent

But if your costume has white accents—like a white flip and with a navy coat or suit—white gloves are a smart note. Dark brown gloves worn with a beige or other very light costume are a new idea . . . and a good looking one, especially if the shoes or hat are the same dark brown.

And if you're wearing navy shoes with a navy costume, it's quite possible you'll want a pair of navy gloves to go with them. It would make you very much in fashion.

Tiger Heart -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

FOR A MOMENT she was disturbed by the acute thought that there was a connection between this and the theft of her mother's pearls. A thief in the night, desperate and willing to take chances, might be scared, bent upon further loot. Connie shivered a little, felt her blood racing. Her mother, Duke, Carson, Kitty and Jim Tracy, all were probably sound asleep.

For a moment Connie stood breathless and poised in the darkness of her room, straining her ears to catch any faint traces of wraps of sound from outside. Someone, definitely, was there . . .

Whether she actually heard or perchance sensed a movement was not clear. Her thoughts, security, went to Duke Garson: if she could but communicate with him, now and surreptitiously she would feel an immense safety.

Jim Tracy as far as any assistance went was totally out of her mind. Only Garson, of all under the roof, could possibly cope with a prowler; the uncanny conviction that evil was astir in the house grew swiftly in her consciousness. A burglar, a thief, with curious footsteps . . .

Despite her care, there was a faint grating sound against the stillness. Once more, rapidly, came a thin swishing from outside. Involuntarily and with a sudden recklessness Connie flung open her door and thrust her head out. The light in the hall was dim; her first glance showed nothing and she turned her head the other way—to the left—just in time to see disappearing in the angle of the wall some form so fleetingly glimpsed that it was no more than a mere flicker of vision.

The sudden, violent beating of her heart checked, stifled her breathing; sharp impatience, amounting to anger, swept over her with a hot, vigorous tide. The mystery stunned her resentments, boiled out in one burst of provoked defiance the lure of her hesitation. Stepping out into the hall, her first thought was to knock on Carson's door; yet curiosity was stronger. Moving quickly, she advanced to the spot where the vague form had disappeared. Nothingness confronted her. No one was there.

Whoever disappeared had two choices; without being seen where Connie originally stood, he could have slipped down to the main staircase or the top floor, where there were several unoccupied rooms and the two rooms occupied separately by Mary Smith, the maid, and Mrs. Lahey, the cook. This upward climb, however, would have necessitated the opening of a door at the top of the flight. Connie heard no such sound.

If help were to be had and a solution no time could be lost. Swiftly retracting her steps, she went back down the hall and stopped in front of Carson's door. If possible, she wanted to arouse him without waking anyone else. If she regretted the stillness of the night, the sound, she feared, would reach the others sleeping. A contempt for convention, for mock modesty, under circumstances such as these, gave her the determination to try his door. It was unlocked. For the fraction of a second she hesitated and then, resolutely, opened it narrowly and slipped inside, closing it softly behind her. In the inner darkness she saw only the dim, bulking lines of the room's furnishings. In the midst of the darkness her voice reached out in a whisper:

"Duke!"

Immediately there was a movement, an alert springing up of a responsive consciousness, instinctively guarded.

"Yes—what is it?"

She moved a step nearer, and kept her voice low—

"Someone has been slipping about in the hall. I got up and saw a flash of someone disappearing at the landing. I thought maybe it was a robber."

"Wait!"

He moved swiftly, found his bathrobe and slippers: "I'll have a look," he whispered. "You better go back into your room and wait."

A terrifying thought came to her. "But if it's a burglar he might shoot you"

Garson opened the door and stepped out into the hall with Connie close behind him. Here they could speak more freely.

"I don't expect to get shot," he told her. "Tell me, first, what you heard and saw and then you'd better get out of sight"

Briefly, she gave him the information

"I went down the other end of the hall, but whoever it was, wasn't in sight," she added

The informality of the affair, at the moment, did not appear unusual, indeed she was so tensely stirred that she was not aware at all of anything unusual in her appearance or his.

"Maybe we'd better get Jim up," she suggested, "in case we should need help—"

"We'll wait until we see if we need Jim first," Garson assured her. "Here's your door, in with you."

But she held on to his inside

"I want to go along with you," she declared, softly.

"All right—but then to the hall then," he agreed. "If you were alone before I suppose it's all-enough now."

Invite Boy to Your Home

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I'm in love with a boy who works in a grocery store, and I work right across the street from him. Many a time when no one is in his store he would get hold of my hand and, when I refuse to go out with him, he will say: "If you were my wife, you couldn't act like that." I never went out with a boy in my life. My parents and relatives like this one a great deal. But I'm funny and very bashful. I am a very poor girl and he is well-to-do. What would you advise me to do? I am only 16.

Beatrice Fairfax

PUZZLED.

Dear Puzzled: As you're only 16, it's natural that you should be a little bashful. And that's pretty young to be going out with a boy alone for a "date." But as you've got to become acquainted with boys sooner or later, and get over what is called the "awkward age," why don't you invite the young man to your house some evening, which should be easy to manage as you say your family likes him?

Lovers' Quarrel

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl, 18 years of age, and have long golden hair and blue eyes. I have been keeping company with a young man who is 22, but we broke up about a month ago. I am now very blue and lonesome and would love to have some young girl or fellow write to me. I will answer all letters. I know you will be able to help me as you have helped so many others.

LONESOME GOLDY.

Dear Goldy: Perhaps the blue will fit you in a little while. After a lovers' quarrel life just doesn't seem worth living does it? However, I'm going to say better, and maybe some other lonesome Bostonian or New England lover will send you words of cheer. Don't lose heart. There are lots of things that make the wheels go 'round besides love, you know.

OF COURSE we all know in the general sense that meat, bread, eggs, cheese are "acid" foods that is, they have an acid rather than an alkaline reaction in the body. And I'm sicians have told us that too much acid produces all kinds of troubles such as rheumatism, indigestion and constipation to mention only a few of the more superficial drawbacks.

The only way to guard against too much acid food is either to eat it all or to balance it with foods which produce an alkaline reaction in the body such as citrus fruits and vegetables (not all of them, however) and fruits and milk.

BAKED SQUASH WITH TOMATOES

Cut 1 small or medium squash (about 3 lbs.) in half, & whole one and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Slice one onion thin, add 1 No. 2 can tomatoes and 2 tbsps butter and pour into squash. Place in a pan and bake until squash and onions are tender, from 1½ to 2 hours. Serve right from the shell. Serves six.

BAKED TOMATOES AND PEPPERS

Shred 1 green pepper, and place with 1 No. 2 can tomatoes, 1 tbsp. melted butter, 1 tsp. salt and a few grains pepper in a buttered baking dish. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake in moderate oven till peppers are tender. Serves four.

And here is a dish which may be a new one to you and one of your meat since it contains its own protein, too.

BAKED STUFFED PEPPERS

Make a white sauce of 1¼ tbsps. butter, 1 tbsp flour, ½ cup milk and a few drops of lemon juice. Add 1 cup flaked fish. Cut stem ends off 4 green peppers, remove seeds and fill with fish mixture. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until nicely brown on top and the pepper tender. Serves four.

Huge Profits On Bethlehem Steel Stock

Profit-Sharing Profitable for Stockholders; 8S P. C. Per Year

By B. C. Forbes

New York, March 5—How much can an executive of a large business be worth?

Whenever it is published that certain men are paid $200,000 or $250,000 or $500,000 or more than $100,000 a year, a howl of protest arises. It is terribly difficult for those of us not in the half million or million dollar class to believe that any man is worth tremendously more than ourselves are worth. It kind of hurts our pride.

B. C. Forbes

Yet the fact is that many more men than we have fingers and toes receive a million dollars a year.

Why? Precisely because they are worth it. Do you know of any corporation that pays a man an enormous salary because of the color of his eyes or hair or because of the shape of his mouth or nose? I don't.

Much hubbub is being raised by opponents of Bethlehem Steel and more recently by a few Bethlehem Steel stockholders — because the dynamic genius mainly responsible for that corporation's growth has shared in the profits to the extent of more than a million dollars a year in good times. Such payments are branded as "revelation." The insinuation is that a scandal of long standing has been uncovered.

The truth is that Bethlehem Steel, Charles M. Schwab, founder of Bethlehem Steel, has openly boasted that Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, has frequently earned upward of a million dollars in nineteen out of twenty years. Instead of being ashamed Schwab has been proud of it.

Several months ago I wrote:

"Nearly fifteen years ago Mr. Schwab told me, and I published the fact, that in banner years Mr. Grace's remuneration exceeded a million dollars. Mr. Schwab has always declared with great emphasis that Gene Grace is much the ablest steel man in America—He's twice as great man I've ever been or will be,' Mr. Schwab has repeatedly proclaimed.

"Everything in this world is relative. A million dollars a year does sound like a gigantic income for any executive.

"But consider how many men at the head of enterprises much smaller than our great modern corporations have made many millions of dollars.

"Admittedly, such men have usually owned all or a large part of their concern. In most instances, however, such ownership has been derived from profits earned by the business. As a matter of fact, it is quite common for leading executives nowadays to put the bulk of their savings into the stock of their corporations. James A. Farrell for example, was revealed as one of the principal individual stockholders in his United States Steel Corporation.

"Surely the responsibilities of the president of a mammoth corporation, employing hundreds of millions or even a billion of capital and employing many thousands of workers, are greater than those of a man running a much smaller enterprise. Yet there is no century when the latter succeeds a large fortune.

"The era of individual ownership is passing. The era of huge corporations has arrived. Is it unfair that a man who would have been capable of amassing a fortune as the owner of his own business should be compensated relatively as well when he administers successfully the affairs of a much more important enterprise of the modern type?

"Could all the facts be studied, it would be found, I am confident, that profit-sharing, generous profit-sharing, has proved an excellent thing for corporations and their owners—the stockholders."

Has profit-sharing proved profitable or ruinous for Bethlehem Steel stockholders?

Had you purchased 100 shares of Bethlehem common stock in 1906, at $25 a share, you would have received 200 more shares in 1917 for nothing. On your investment of $2500, your cash dividends would have amounted to $22,000 and the market value of your 300 shares would now be approximately $30,000. Your profit from cash dividends and increase in market value would thus have been close to $40,000.

Your total dividends and appreciation would have equaled $15.50 per share each year, equivalent to an average annual return of 62 per cent on your original investment at $25 a share, or 8.25%.

If you had waited until the year Mr. Grace was elected president, in 1913, and bought Bethlehem shares, you would have had an average annual return of 86 per cent on your investment.

I have shares in a few companies. If by paying the president of each a million dollars or more a year I could be assured of 63 per cent or 86 per cent a year on my money, I would plump for profit-sharing. Wouldn't you?

NEW ADVANCE IS FORECAST FOR STEELS

By FRANK H. MELDON

Advance in the price of copper came through as scheduled this week and was extremely significant that it increased domestic demand. No doubt can exist for the red metal's market has had some thing to do with rises now being laid by leaders for raising prices of steel products, and for that matter shading, has been the rule.

The rubber industry is getting busy. British and Dutch producers are planning to renew restriction plans, the ending of which dropped prices of the crude in spectacular fashion. Crude rubber plummeted from around a dollar a pound to less than a cent. Humpty-Dumpty' had a great fall. It remains to be seen whether he can be put back on the wall.

One of the biggest financial news items of the year tells us of the completion of safes carrying over $5,000,000 in gold through New York streets as the City Bank Farmers Trust Company moved to its new Madison Avenue home on Nov. 22. Will our new bank building have the world's largest private safe deposit vault? Perhaps not. With a capacity of 60,000 extension by adding lines. The president of the big bank is James H. Perkins.

Mr. Perkins was born in Milton, and has first-hand business position after being graduated from Harvard was with the Witter Baker cocoa company in Dorchester. Back in 1906 he became vice-president of the American Trust Co. of Boston having, for a few years before, accepted the vice presidency of the National Commercial Bank at Albany, N. Y.

A nationally circulated magazine dampens the market with some amusing observations. One reader:

"Many of these stocks are still far too high, being based on inflated profits and not on the, actual value of the properties."

The observation may be clear to someone. If you please write us. Incidentally a lot of board room assessors are talking about how many "billions" stocks are worth should sell. We would like to know what, by this measure, is the value of a company's shares when it is operating "in the red."

First National Stores, Inc., announces that there are 8583 stock holders on its books, 2615 holding preferred stock, 5968 being holders of common stock as of January 27, 1931.

The present number of common stockholders is over twice that of 1926, when the present common was issued. The majority of shareholders, or 5,000, own from one to 100 shares. There are 500 holders of from 100 to 500 shares; 78 of 500 to 1000 shares, and 90 of 1000 shares and over, approximately 45 per cent of the common stockholders are women.

Engineers Shows Larger Earnings

Engineers Public Service Co. today reported consolidated gross earnings for the 12 months ending January 1931, of $35,052,345, an increase of $1,856,707 over the previous 12 months' period, and consolidated net operating revenues of $22,790,530, an increase of $1,382,930 over the previous 12 months period.

Balance for common stock, after depreciation was $4,842,589, or $2.81 per share compared with $4,467,920 or $2.18 a share for previous 12 months period. For the month of January, 1931, gross earnings increased $10,704, and net operating revenue increased $58,213.

Shoe's Sales for Two Months Larger

New York, March 5 (AP)—Diamond Shoe Co. reported February sales of $1,052,646. Sales for first two months this year totaled $2,275,785, increase of 7.9 per cent over $2,109,060 reported for corresponding months of last year.

Pillsbury Flour Outlook Is Good

New York, March 5 (AP)—A. C. Loring, president of Pillsbury Flour Mills, Inc., said earnings for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, will be at least as great as the average of $4.64 for the last four years.

Rubber Barely Steady

New York, March 5—Rubber futures today were barely steady. March 7.95; May 8.30; July 8.55. New contracts—May 8.25; July 8.65.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

One big brokerage house points out today the interesting possibility that the utility group might break away from the rest of the Wall Street actors and stage a private bull market of its own.

Mullins in Class All by Itself

Mullins was in a class all by itself today, while it was adding several points to recent sharp gains in a further roundup of the shoot interest. The stock is selling at more than four times its January low and that can be said of very few issues.

Utilities Both Strong and Active

At times today the utilities were both strong and active. This was specially true of United Corp. and Consolidated Gas of New York.

Steel Flurries on Possible Marking Up

Flurries in the steels today were based on the persistent rumor that prices of the Pittsburgh products would be marked up before long. Transue & Williams and Superior up 3 and quieks, adding a point or so to U. S. Steel stiffened many companies.

New York Central Sets a New Low

New York Central reached a new low for the year on Baltimore & Ohio out 2 points to 76¾, in both cases uncertainty over the continuation of the present dividends on the common stock accounted for the selling pressure. Losses in both active rails at the same time averaged about a point.

Postponement on 'Frisco Is Bad

St. Louis & San Francisco directors have again postponed action on the dividend. Such delay is not apt to help the stock, as it will lead now to talk of omission rather than reduction of dividend. Frisco was much less heavily sold today than it has been the result, however, if its dividend had been omitted.

Eastern Utilities Are Doing Best

Record earnings of American Water Works & Electric from $4.10 to $4.30 shows the $3 dividend would have been earned. There is reason to believe the present dividend basis is entirely safe. Newspaper stocks attention again in poorer showing of the utilities in the Middle West as compared with those on the Atlantic seaboard. The stock yields just over 6 per cent and is selling 24 times earnings which is high compared with other utilities

Paper Company's Sheet Is Strong

Report of Great Northern Paper Company shows a very strong balance sheet. An earned surplus of over $22,000,000 is shown. The company actually did better in 1930 than in 1929 and more than earned its $3 dividend. At 40 the yield is 7½ per cent.

Railroad Picture Could Be Changed

Four-System Merger Clash Reported

Another unsettling factor in the railroad situation is report that differences have broken out again among the most important interests in the planned Four-System merger of eastern roads. It was the inability of these two groups to agree that scrapped the proposed consolidation before, and some fear that the present dispute may hold up the entire development. In the transportation group the ovis branch would help carriers just now.

New England Telephone and Telegraph Company

183rd Dividend

A dividend of two dollars ($2.00) per share will be paid on Tuesday, March 31, 1931, to stock holders of record at the close of business on Tuesday, March 10, 1931.

O. J. IVES, Treasurer.

CURB TRADING IN LIGHTER VOLUME

New York, March 5—Speculative activity was further reduced on the Curb today. Prices shifted frequently in light trading but changes in a majority of the active issues were fractional.

Little was made a bid for attention with a rally during the morning when Electric Bond & Share rose a couple of points. Bulls lost heart when other groups failed to follow and electric power shares had some difficulty holding their improvement, although United Light "A" and American Super Power were well supported.

News that Colombian Petroleum, controlled by Gulf was getting a 50-year concession in Colombia found the oil shares generally dull and heavy. Gulf gained a point in small dealings, while Carib Syndicate, which also has an interest in the Colombian company was fairly active although slightly changed.

Mead Johnson regained ground lost on Friday's profit taking, but more than two points under further selling on omission of dividend. Driver Harris and Technicolor eased.

Revival of Silver Futures Planned

New York, March 5 (AP) Committee of National Metal Exchange of New York has been appointed to consider advisability of establishing a silver futures market. Years ago there was such a market on the New York Stock Exchange, but it was abandoned because demand was slight.

Goodyear Output in Dixie Plant Up

Dixie plant of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. at Gadsden, Ala., has stepped up daily output to 5500 tires from 5500. Three shifts of eight hours each are being operated and 200 men were recently added.

RALLY STAGED BY UTILITIES AND STEELS

New York, March 5—Steels and utilities staged a rally in Wall Street trading today, and the bulls again appeared in control, after having let the bears have their own way for about five sessions.

Brightening of the share market represented in part a somewhat tardy response to the adjournment of Congress, but a real bull celebration failed to appear.

SELLING SHRINKS

In the main, it appeared to reflect a correction of somewhat bearishness. Speculative sentiment, fickle and largely unreasoning, had grown as gloomy as it was buoyant a week ago.

Further selling in the rails and miscellaneous shared early in the list a heavy tone in the morning, but selling soon shrank to meager proportions, and the market inclined emphatically upward in the middle of the day.

Support for the steel and utility issues promoted covering and moderate early declines were converted into gains of 1 to 5.

The best prices were made in the last hour when the market was at most active. American Can, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, International Telephone, American & Foreign Power and Atchison rallied 3.

New York Central, American Telephone, Westinghouse and General Electric rose 2 or more.

U. S. Steel was up about 1½ Sales approximated 2,700,000 shares. Call money was 6 per cent.

FRISCO ⅝ PUZZLE.

Rail issues appeared largely to have discounted the adverse action of the previous day, although the terse announcement that Frisco directors had "postponed" action on the payment due April 1 was somewhat confusing. Since the action had been deferred previously Wall Street was inclined to view the situation as tantamount to an omission, although official comment was lacking.

Wall Street regards adjournment of Congress as bullish, both for the rails and utilities. It was pointed out that no action to hamper the four-party Eastern railway consolidation plan had been taken. With tail earnings holding at low levels, however, and dividends over maintenance of other dividends remaining, bullishness was applied primarily to the utilities.

Heavy selling of the carrier issues yesterday had obscured the favorable aspects of the weekly steel trade reviews.

While the uptrend in the industry has slowed visibly, and earnings are anything but satisfactory for most producers, there is much confidence in the steel trade as reflected in the latter half of the year.

Some quarters were more hopeful today of an early price list for steel products for the second quarter.

N. E. Confectionery Report Is Issued

New England Confectionery Co. issues its balance sheet, dated Dec. 31, 1930, showing after dividend payments of $14 per share on the 1,000,000 capital stock and a write-down of good-will amounting to $230,807, a decrease in surplus of $334,746, the latter indicating profits for the 1930 year of $176,061, or $8.80 per share. Indicated profits per share for previous years were: 1929, $19.15; 1928, $22.52; 1927, $14.51; 1926, $38.24, and 1925, $36.75.

Grant's February Sales Up Sharply

W. T. Grant Company reports sales for February of $4,347,489, an increase of 11.1 per cent over the sales in the same month of 1930, which were $3,912,891.

Sales for the first two months of this year were $8,457,603, against $7,697,203 in the corresponding period of last year, an increase of 9.8 per cent.

Burroughs Report for Year Is Given

Burroughs Adding Machine Co. reports for 1930 net of $7,505,484 after federal taxes, reserves and depreciation, equivalent to $1.50 a share on 5,000,000 no-par shares, against $11,684,557 or $2.33 a share in 1929.

HOWARD CHAIN OPENS 18TH

The new Howard Clothing Store at 695 Washington st., between Avery and Boylston sts., the 18th store in a chain of Howard stores in the country, was opened for business this morning. Mayor James M. Curley turning the key in the door of the main entrance. The Mayor was accompanied by John F. Dawson, manager of the Washington st. store, and Maurice Langerman, manager of the store at 43 Tremont st. Mayor Curley paid high compliment to the Howard system.

The Washington st. store is one of the largest in Boston devoted to men's clothes.

ly. "I'm tearing the church down —and going to build a dance hall there. How'd you like to make five hundred bucks a month running it?"

Anne shrugged.

"Thanks, Mr. Scorpio—but I'm not interested," she parried.

"Look, girlie," he wheeled. "You ain't getting any younger—and I don't see any diamonds on your piazza. Give me a chance and I'll trim you up just like a Christmas tree!"

Anne was about to reply, when an interruption caused both to turn. Meta Dane dashed up excited the door, and by excited looks and gestures, indicated that some one important was outside, waiting to see the gang leader. Scorpio turned to the girl.

"Just wait here a minute, honey," he instructed, "till I see who it is." He followed Meta. Anne hurried to the door, and fled the room.

In fetetto to the private office Scorpio followed Metz, pausing on the landing to beckon a slim youth at a table to follow. The boy had of late been a habitue of the place. He was the newsboy Scorpio used to buy papers from, back in the old days—in fact he'd bought a paper from him even on the night he'd had his first adventure in Gangland.

"Stick around—may need you," ordered Scorpio, as he indicated the outer office. The boy nodded eagerly, as he regarded the gang leader with a dollike admiration. Scorpio entered the private office, to greet the unknown visitor.

It was Colimo, the gangster from the city. Faultlessly attired as usual, the "gentleman gangster" stepped forward as Scorpio extendstarted, and looked quickly around for his guards. But Colimo's manner was propitiatory.

"Just dropped in to congratulate you, Scorpio," declared Colimo. "You see—I found out that it was really Johnny Franks who bumped my brother—and I'm sorry we tried to put you on the spot that night. But you know how it was —Franks turned you up, so we even talked about going into partnership on the strength of your being put on the spot. But now we know what really happened—I have no hard feelings. Have you?"

"Certainly not, Joe," he responded, shaking hands with the city gangster. "We boys ought to get along mighty well from now on."

"That's right," answered Colimo, "Drop in any time you're in the city—and we'll talk. We might get together—the way Franks and Newton wanted to. In fact I've been thinking a lot about that lately—and if you talk to Newton you'll probably find that he thinks it might be a good idea too."

Scorpio nodded. He had talked to Newton several times about this lately—but what he had in mind—well it was just as well Colimo didn't know. He called for the drinks.

With a bound Scorpio was at the door of the outer office, beckoning Metz, who promptly entered, handed the gangster chief a sawed-off "Betty gun," those short-barreled revolvers, easily hidden, which gangsters find so effective for close range. Placing the gun in his coat pocket, he turned and beckoned the former newsboy.

CHEVROLET MEN IN BUSINESS 'DRAMA' TODAY

An aggressive move to bring business back to the level of previous years is to be made here today when 500 Chevrolet salesmen meet at the Wilbur Theater at 3 p. m. to hear factory officials explain conduct a sales convention on what is said to be the most novel and extensive basis yet attempted by the automobile industry.

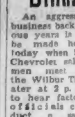
The move represents an extraordinary activity made by local officials of the company in the belief that good business will reward the manufacturer in 1931 who goes out after it.

Heading the factory men to put on the business session are W. J. Graveson, metropolitan sales director; H. L. Horton, regional manager, with headquarters at New York City; H. J. Walsh, local zone manager; Sidney Corbett, member of the factory sales promotion department at Detroit, and others from the local region and zone staffs.

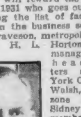
W. J. Graveson

The meeting begins at noon with a luncheon at Hotel Bradford, and comprises an afternoon of instruction at the Wilbur Theater. To add to the effectiveness of the stage presentation a carload of stage equipment, comparable to that carried by a large theatrical road show, has been brought here for the meeting.

A feature of the noon luncheon will be the installation of zone officers of the "100-Car Club," a star salesman's honorary organization comprised of those retail salesmen who sell 100 or more cars in 12 months.



H. J. Walsh



Sidney Corbett

The following officers, who lead the zone in car sales, will be installed: R. Rosenthal, president, 312 new car points, Lawson Motor Sales, Newport, R. I.; F. Mitchell, vice president, 284 new-car points, Central Garage, Central Falls, R. I.; D. J. O'Connell, secretary, 256 new-car points, Cambridge Motor Co., Cambridge; and Seth Johnson, treasurer, 252 new-car points, R. G. Pease, Inc., Waltham.

Popeye the Sailor, at 12, Was Betrayed by Sody Pop

CHAPTER THREE

By the time our hero was 12 he startled everybody by proving himself a full-grown man. He had to shave after every meal, and this was for the purpose of removing whiskers, not mulligan. His muscles were so hard that he used them constantly as a grindstone for pocket stilettos and picked up a lot of change this way reading them out to friends.

It was about this time that he went to sea. He was shanghaied with knockout drops in the ching of everybody on the boat, including the captain. So the barkentine Poole Queen put to sea. Popeye was on another craft of the same name. After a few days he discovered he liked the life and spent his time practicing a sailor's walk to use later in his comic strip, "Thimble Theater."

It was on this first voyage that "Popeye" got his nickname, "Popeye." Before that everyone had referred to him simply as "Popeye." Now they called him "Pop" after he lost a blinker, and he has never been known by any other name.

Ask any old sailorman what happened back in 1910. All right —that's his story. The real events had nothing to do with the woman called "Marseilles Minnie." She is not concerned in this story at all, because, as everyone knows, Olive Oyl is Popeye's girl friend now by much later. But anyway, Popeye lost one peeper.

He had just finished shooting a few craps with his trusty trap-gun. The first, second, third, fourth and fifth mates were cleaned out on the deck, and Popeye was making pass after pass—at the money in the middle of the floor. He stepped the bloodthirsty cook of the "Josie Lee," known to his intimates as "The Ape."

"Blow me down," said Popeye, "I'll lay you among the swee' peas."

Popeye cast about him hastily for a handy sweet pea bed. To his horror, there was not a one on the boat. He could not go back on his promise and lay "The Ape" anywhere else—say, for instance, in the handsome sunflower patch amidships—so all he could do was stand still and take his punishment.

That was how he lost one optic and had his name changed from "Popeye" to "Popeye."

Popeye was about 13 when this portrait was made. You can see he hasn't changed much.

AT THE LISTENING POST

The wrestling match between Gus Sonnenberg and Leo Wyckoff at the Boston Arena tonight will be broadcast through WLEX and the Yankee Network. Gerry Harrison will describe the affair which goes on the air at 10 p. m.

BACK IN 1921, a woman's voice was heard for the first time through the ether. That voice belonged to Vaughan de Leath, during her the distinction of being America's original radio girl. At 9:30 last night, the same voice was heard (WEEI) during the Palmolive hour. Proving that the artists of those early dates still have a place in the sun with their more recent fellow performers of the present day. Which brings to mind the fact that Graham McNamee is still the fair haired boy for Fleischmann. His "twin voice" Phillips Carlin is highly regarded by NBC, so much so that he wears an executive brass hat in the New York offices, in addition to taking his regular turn before the "mike."

ANOTHER TEN O'CLOCK Revue is slated for tonight (WBZA at 10) with a leaning to popular quick time rythm featured.

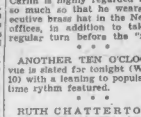
RUTH CHATTERTON, who needs no introduction, has heard the call of the radio public and will soon emote in air dramas from the gilded halls of National at 711 Fifth ave. in New York.

* * *



NAMES IS NAMES: Bill Hay states that he is making "his name" on the sun shines. Get it? Hey, hey.

A DRAMATIC OFFERING tomorrow night (WEEI at 9:15) is "Shattered Faith," based on the novel and R. K. O. photoplay "Millie." If the ladies don't like this one, they can never be pleased. It is designed for the heart of womanhood. Miss Clara Davis will have the leading role, supported by an able cast.

Port of Boston News

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Efforts of the Maritime Association of Boston Chamber of Commerce for a modification of the Cape Cod Canal pr..ject to provide a lock canal with one level instead of the present sea level canal have borne fruit.

The recommendation of Maj.-Gen. Michael Brown of the U. S. Army Engineers was transmitted to Congress by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

COMPLETE PLANS

Preparations for the coming of the French liner France to the Port of Boston have been made, it was announced by H. Ainsley Hingham, Boston representative. She will reach Commonwealth Pier at 7 a. m. on March 21, from New York and will depart from here after taking on 150 Boston passengers. Total number booked for the Mediterranean cruise reaches 400.

LOWER RATE

Fourteen per cent reduction in rates for automobiles shipped for Boston has been announced by W. Bartlett, general agent for the Clyde-Mallory Line at Jacksonville. Under the new tariff, automobiles shipped from this port to Jacksonville will get this reduction when accompanied by three or more passengers.

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

The Hearst Papers Advocate

1. "Honest friendship with all nations—entangling alliances with none."—George Washington.
2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate—no State to have less than two Senators.
3. Army, Navy and Aviation—all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Vigorous Federal action, under a Secretary of Education, to abolish illiteracy in the United States.
5. Installation of President and of Congress on the first of January following election in November.
6. Federal Sales Tax and Excise Taxes to replace entirely Income Taxes.
7. A calendar year of thirteen months of four weeks each; all holidays to fall on Saturday.
8. Construction of Nicaragua Canal for commerce and defense; advocated by the Hearst papers since 1895.
9. Acquisition of French and English West Indies as part payment on debt to the United States.
10. Selective immigration to admit only those suited for American citizenship and American needs.
11. Deportation of undesirable aliens and extension of preliminary citizenship periods to ten years.
12. Modification of Volstead Act to permit light wines and beers under Federal regulation.

Our Citizen Army

Coming Camps Offer Fine Opportunities

This is not a Phil Cook broadcast; it is a reminder that enlistments for the Citizens' Military Training Camps were opened March 1.

Over 3000 young men of New England will be given cavalry and field artillery training at Fort Ethan Allen, infantry training at Fort McKinley and Camp Devens, and coast artillery training at Fort Adams.

The tour of duty will be from July 2 to July 30.

Since our government at Washington seems intent upon emasculating our regular army and navy, the defense of our country must rely very largely upon our civilian, commercial airforces and upon the fine young men who are trained for officerships in these valuable citizens' camps.

The camp is very much worthwhile, not alone from a military standpoint. It trains our young men in efficiency, in military knowledge and lore, and in patriotism and discipline while developing them physically. The sons of Presidents Hoover and Coolidge have derived the benefits of these camps. Every son in the country should avail himself of the same benefits.

Small Town Stuff

From the Census Bureau

Odd facts turn up in the census. How many inhabitants, for instance, does it take to make a town? Most persons would say a few hundred at least. Yet the census reveals that there are two towns in the United States with exactly one inhabitant each.

These miniature centers of population are Arundel-on-the-Bay, Maryland, and Bourne, Oregon. And there are two towns with but two inhabitants apiece—Nevadaville, Col., and Gunn, Wyo.

Though Arundel and Bourne never were crowded, Nevadaville and Gunn quite recently had claims to greatness. The first boasted of 51 citizens in 1920, while Gunn had 313 as late as 1921. But the booms exploded, and each of these budding cities fizzled out.

Few would miss these places if they disappeared from the earth. Yet they have their names on the map, just like Boston, and their people are doubtless as thankful they live there as a Bostonian is that he doesn't.

The House, Revere Beach

The House should approve without delay the Senate bill calling for an investigation of the project to develop Revere Beach into a great health and recreation center. Substitution of the bill for an adverse committee-report in the Senate is proof that a majority recognizes the opportunities offered by Nature at this long-neglected resort. The Senate is to be praised for its constructive action and House members certainly will want to be as forward-looking. At comparatively small cost, Revere Beach may be transformed into the finest shore playground in America. Surely the House will not stand in the way of determining when and how we should go about making it such.

English High Is Saved

Boston in general, and English High graduates in particular, voice approval of the decision of school authorities and the Finance Commission to maintain the famous old school. As the oldest high school in the United States, English will continue with its fine teachings to send forth into public life "men of affairs" of the future. Properly conducted schools and school systems grow better and stronger with age. Traditions surrounding them should be guarded and cherished.

What Do You Know?

Fill each blank:

1—Christian is the hero of ——.
2—Paul Revere was a hero of the —— War.
3—Sweet cider —— if allowed to stand.
4—"—— springs eternal in the human breast."
5—The —— Amendment has to do with the income tax.

Match correctly:

6—Urban. Control.
7—Improve. National.
8—Regulate. Better.
9—Legal. Pertaining to city.
10—Federal. Lawful.

Do you know:

12—Who wrote "In the Palace of the King"?

1—Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress."
2—Revolutionary. 3—Ferments. 4—Hope. 5—Sixteenth. 6—Pertaining to city. 7—Better. 8—Control. 9—Lawful. 10—National. 11—Gilbert Stuart. 12—Marion Crawford. 13—Panacea.

LOOK THROUGH THE RIGHT END -:- By T. E. Powers

Listen, World! -:- Fear

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Pride Is Bigger Medicine

JUDGE BEN LINDSEY told me this story:

He'd had to sentence a Bad Man . . . a 100 per cent Tough Guy who'd been raising Cain for months. It had taken the police weeks to catch him and he'd threatened to bust any jail they put him in. Yet, after conviction and a little talk with the Judge, he hopped a train, unescorted, and delivered himself at the penitentiary, 350 miles away.

Elsie Robinson

Sounds like Ripley, doesn't it? Well, believe it or not, that's what happened. How? Why?

"PRIDE," said Judge Lindsey, "I put it up to him. I told him nothing could keep him from serving his stretch and he knew he deserved to serve it. And I intimated that I'd have to send a heavy guard with him BECAUSE HE WAS PROBABLY AFRAID TO FACE THE MUSIC. That roused him! He came back at me in a flash.

"'Look here, Judge,' says he. 'Do you suppose a guy like me that has faced mobs and pulled off the stunts I've pulled, is afraid to go to prison? Then you got another guess coming. I never needed no bodyguard to look after me when I was doing my stuff and I don't need no bodyguard now. I'm not one of those white-livered quitters. If I've got to go to the pen I'll go, AND I'LL GO ALONE!"

And he went.

PRIDE sent that man up alone, to face the music. PRIDE would have saved him from the pen—if it had been used in time. But we're only beginning to see that pride is worth using . . . that it works infinitely better than punishment, than fear. And most of us still don't and won't see—

FEAR—that was the god we worshipped, that was the lash that drove us, since first we scuttled down from the trees and out of the caves. Fear ruling our hearts, as it ruled the hearts of the wolf and the wild pig, the snake and the weasel.

Make people afraid!

Punish people!

That was our code. That is STILL our code. The old, bloody, stupid code of the jungle.

It works in the jungle.

BUT IT DOESN'T WORK IN MAN.

It doesn't work in man because he isn't a wolf or a pig, a snake or a weasel—not entirely. Hair and hide and bone and blood of the brute—but tangled in with it all, something the brute hasn't, a spark of the Eternal Flame. A spark that makes him partly god as well as partly brute.

A man's PRIDE—there's the spark, flame. There's the point where a man stops being a brute and begins to reach toward God. You may not think much of his reach. You may think him a million miles from God. But you're wrong. There, in that spark—there, in his PRIDE, lies that man's hope of salvation.

Fear—that's the law of the brute. Punishment—they are the tactics of the brute. Punish a man and you'll wake the brute—in YOURSELF AS WELL AS IN THE MAN. And the brute in him will snarl back at the brute in you . . . and probably outsmart you.

But trust a man—appeal to his pride—and you'll wake the god in HIM as well as in YOURSELF. And the god in him will salute the god in you—AND PROBABLY SURPRISE YOU.

Try it. WOULDN'T YOU WANT IT TRIED ON YOU?

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

The Plaisance of Harlem

NEW YORK, March 5—Seventh ave. has supplanted its neighbor, Lenox, as the main plaisance of Harlem. Lenox still teems with color in all its chromatic wildness, but high-stepping strutters of the Black Belt's "Who's Who" now promenade on Seventh.

Here are bay-windowed apartment houses once occupied by wealthy whites.

Trade is creeping in, but most of the business of the area is confined to Lenox. There is a mall running down Seventh ave., and on the sidewalk edges are spreading trees.

There are uniformed doormen and elevator boys and fashionable pen-wiper dogs, along with white, lean Russian wolf hounds. The bon ton dresser of the strip is Eddie Manchester, whose clothes are last gasps. He is employed, incidentally, by a Fifth ave. tailor.

One of the feminine fashion plates is Nora Holt, a cabaret entertainer. She queens it to work in a limousine, swathed in ermine. Her nearest sartorial rival is Lelia Walker of "Kink-No-More" fame. Then there is the big-spending, easy-going shot among realtors—John Nail.

On Seventh ave. is "The Wishing Tree," the heart of Harlem's Rialto, where colored performers gather in off hours. Among its regulars are the feather-footed Bill Robinson, the oolie-ee-low chanteuse Adelaide Hall, and another sepia favorite, Ethel Watters.

Broadway had a half dozen so-called colored shows this season, but the complexions of performers were mostly white. The all-black and saddle colored are seldom seen. Indeed, many negro comedians are forced to use burned cork.

And hair is mostly straight. Both men and women plaster it down and gloss it up with a mirror-like polish. Chorines, ponies and show girls use rouge, mascara and powder with the same generous abandon of their all-white sisters.

From a morning paper: "The proprietor invited him into his cafe and personally served him with three heaping plates of spaghetti, which he washed with a gusto."

The fine Italian hand-out.

He is one of the Broadway racketeers, an incongruously monk-like aesthete with a silken voice. I met him years ago in the old Mandarin in Chinatown. From time to time he sends me initialed clippings of his particular poetic or prosaic fancy. Always they stress idyllic emotion. On an early errand recently I met him, just going home and a little sleepy-eyed. "You know," he said, "I was just thinking that yellow-hammers and redbirds are flickering across the lawn down nome. And it is just the time of day the perfume of magnolia is sweetest." It was difficult to imagine his hands are red with several reputed murders! But they are.

I wonder if other scribblers fly into a sudden rage at typewriting ribbons. Mine today suddenly buckled into a loop and refused to budge. Instead of calling a repair man I tried to straighten it out. As a result the machine carriage hobbles along for about five words, suddenly hiccups and races backward. I have hit the blame thing with everything except the dictionary stand, my arms are smeared with ink to the elbows and I have a headache cut out for a hippopotamus.

After calming myself by skipping around the block and quaffing a soothing malted milk I returned to find a special delivery from Ted Cook, with a clipping by Beaunash in the theater programs. It read: "Our casual habits of dress and a national self-consciousness about overdoing elegance lest we smoke rising sardonicus contribute to keep the high silk hat off its pinnacle." And now I am perfectly furious all over again!

The Marry-Go-Round - By Helen Rowland

No More "Yes—Dear" Wives

HOME USED to be the place where we went for quiet and rest:—that peaceful, soothing silence, after the clamor and clatter and hustle of the business office.

Now it is the place where we go to listen to the radio, gabble over the telephone, scrap over the car and settle the problems of the nation and the family with argument and battle.

Where the children are heard (like a fire alarm), but seldom seen; where the hum of the refrigerator vies with the buzz of the vacuum cleaner; where the cooking and dusting are done to the crooning of tenors and the blaring of jazz, and the family resembles a debating society.

* * *

Once upon a time it was not their arguments and quarrels that made husbands and wives wonder why they ever had married each other, but those long, deadly silences, when they could think of nothing to say to each other.

* * *

Men were bored—bored to tears with women who could only sit by the lamp and knit and sew and say "Yes, dear." Husbands sighed for mental companionship—and went promptly to sleep (with their mouths open) after dinner.

Men wanted intelligent companionship—and now they've GOT it. The last "Yes, dear" wife is probably being stuffed for the Museum of Natural History at this moment. Home is a forum, and the living-room rug is a rostrum.

There are no secrets, no more mysteries, no more silences between a man and a woman. He knows just what brand of make-up she uses, which of her teeth are on a bridge, and exactly why she married him instead of the other fellow.

* * *

And SHE knows just how hard or little he works at the office; just how much of his success is due to his brilliant mind and how much is due to luck and an efficient stenographer; just when it's his indigestion or his tooth or his conscience that is bothering him, and just how much padding there is in his shoulders.

* * *

There are two sets of opinions in every household on every matter from birth-control and prohibition to golf and spinach. And never the two shall meet! And where silence once drove a man to sleep or the club, continuous TALK now drives him to insomnia, a blonde or Reno.

Think It Over

Drawn by Hal Coffman

In picture form, it is repeated here.

Just as an insect thinks that every drop of water in a cloudburst, so do men fear drowning beneath a cataract of troubles, most of which exist only in their own minds.

To worry is human. But think back over your life, try to recall the calamities you imagined might happen to you, and then see how many did NOT happen.

Unless you have been peculiarly unlucky, only a few of those anticipated disasters ever took place.

You can make a drop of water look like Niagara, if you look at it as an insect looks at it. But why be an insect? Your brain was given you to see things as they are, not to magnify your troubles until they overwhelm you.

Friends Can't Help Here

By WINIFRED BLACK

Let Family Solve Own Problems

HERE'S a letter from The Friend.

And it's all about The Mother-in-law.

There's a young man and a young woman, so the letter says, and they've been married for three years, and they have two small children, and they have been very happy until just a little while ago, when the man lost his job and his mother sent for him and his wife and two children to come and live with her in her big, comfortable, lonesome, rather formal house—until the man got a good job again.

Winifred Black

The trouble began the very week that the man and his wife went to live with the man's mother.

The wife had a theory about children, and she was trying to bring her children up according to that theory, and grandma kept interfering.

The theory didn't approve of candy or nuts or popcorn, or anything except fresh fruits between meals.

And grandma just laughed and gave the children chocolates, and raisins and nuts, and popcorn and sugar cookies whenever she felt like it.

And the children loved it, and ran to grandma and cried and said they were hungry, and grandma went straight to the cookie jar, and they hugged her and kissed her and said they loved grandma best.

The days were just crowded with things that made the wife unhappy.

Grandma said mean things about mama to son.

At first son laughed, and then he laughed again, but it wasn't the same sort of laughter.

There was something a little mean and deriding in the second kind of laugh, and it made the wife cry, and when she cried her husband was cross and asked her if she wanted to be a martyr and wear a martyr's crown.

And by and by he began staying out late at night, and when the wife spoke to him about it, he called his mother in to arbitrate and mother always sided with son.

Things went from bad to worse, and now the wife is out looking for a job herself, and husband and his rich mother are living in the big, rather formal house together.

It is all very pitiful and very cruel, and very silly—isn't it?

Of course, an old woman should not be jealous of her son's love for a young wife. She has had her youth, and her love, why begrudge them to another woman.

And equally, of course, why should a young woman with a young husband and two lovely children and all life and love and happiness right there in her own young heart be jealous of a poor old woman who is lonely and hungry for affection.

Why shouldn't the two women be friends? Why shouldn't they make the man and the children they both love happy—and be happy themselves, too?

No, I thank you, Friend.

I don't know the whole story, and whisper, neither do you.

Nobody knows it but the three people who are in it themselves and probably neither one of them knows it as it really it—either.

Don't interfere, Friend.

You'll earn the hatred of two people no matter what you do, and very likely the hatred of all three.

It's pitiful and it's wrong, and it's so useless and so unnecessary, isn't it?

But that's the way with the things we poor human beings do all the time, isn't it?

They're so human.

TO PARAPHRASE Tom Reed, the reason why the Seventy-first Congress blew in $10,000,000,000 in appropriations is that this is a $10,000,000,000 country.

Italy is now said to have agreed to the new naval pact because of her need to negotiate a small loan in the United States, thus proving that every war cloud has a silver lining.

THE NYE committee report on the Pennsylvania election might be written thus with large savings in ink and paper: "Down with Jim Davis, and three cheers for him and a tiger!"

CONGRESS passes an act making the Star Spangled Banner the national hymn, but it'll take an amendment to the Constitution to enable anybody to sing the second verse.
